Lights Go On Again in East

U.S. Casualties Run High in Plei Me Fight

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — American casualties in the first week of November were the highest so far in the Viet Nam war — 70 killed and 237 wounded, a U.S. spokesman reported today.

Most of the Americans were killed in actions around the Special Forces camp at Plei Me, in the central highlands. The week before there were 42 American dead.

The figures released today did not include the major battle Monday in the D one north of Saigon between U.S. paratroopers and Communist troops.

The casualties brought the total number of Americans killed in action in Viet Nam to 933, according to unofficial tabulation. A total of 4,801 have been wounded and 92 are missing.

Twenty Americans are known to be detained by the Viet Cong. Vietnamese killed during the first week of November totaled 144, twice as many as the Americans killed. Two months ago one American was dying to every four Vietnamese.

Viet Cong dead were estimated at 536, giving Allied forces a 2.5-to-1 kill ratio in their favor.

Two Americans were captured during the week.

U.S. Air Force and Navy planes hammered targets in North and South Viet Nam as ground action lessened.

Air Force B52s pounded D one for the second successive day, striking a suspected Viet Cong target about 35 miles northeast of Saigon.

The Viet Cong were in action near the Cambodian border south of Saigon. They inflicted heavy casualties on a Vietnamese force moving supplies to an isolated outpost.

The Communist guerrillas also attacked another outpost in the area and mortared the district town of Kien Binh. The outposts defenders withdrew.

Troops from the U.S. Army's 101st Airborne Brigade terminated "Operation Capricorn" near Qui Nhon, with seven Viet Cong killed in the two-day sweep.

Farther west, 1st Cavalry Division troops continued sweeping the Plei Me area, scene of several major engagements last week. The cavalrymen reported only light action today.

A U.S. Navy Skyraider bomber from the carrier Oriskany was lost at sea when its engine failed. The pilot ditched about five miles from the coast and was picked up uninjured by a rescue helicopter.

Fairborn Council Orders Blackout

FAIRBORN, Ohio (AP) — A self-imposed dimout went into effect in this city of 20,000 Tuesday night shortly after the big Northeastern United States blackout commenced.

A switch was flipped turning off streetlights on main downtown thoroughfares, first step in gradual extinguishing this week of all municipal streetlights.

City Council ordered the measure at its Monday night meeting following voters' defeat last week of an 8 mill levy to operate municipal lighting.

Singer Mel Torme Wins Custody of Son

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Singer Mel Torme and his wife, Arlene, each have obtained a divorce decree, with Torme gaining custody of their 6-year-old son, Tracy.

Torme, 40, charged cruelty and adultery. His wife, 35, accused him of cruelty and having tried to break down her front door.

Mrs. Torme was granted alimony Tuesday for three years.

Electricity Flows 'Wrong Way' Causing Northeast U.S. Blackout

TORONTO (AP) — The electricity that browns your toast, went the wrong way Tuesday night. The result affected 30 million people in Canada and the United States.

Officials of the publicly-owned Ontario Hydroelectric Power Commission, at a candle-lit interview during three successive blackouts in Toronto, told this version of how it happened:

At around 5:15 p.m., when wives were getting supper and commuters in southeastern Ontario and along the U.S. Atlantic seaboard were starting home — there was what Consolidated Edison in New York called "an electrical disturbance" somewhere in northern New York.

A complex of interlocking power lines extends from Quebec through Ontario to power companies of New York State, and from there south to the Gulf of Mexico and west to Montana.

This interconnection complex, called a grid, carries electric power from the rivers of northern Quebec and Ontario, from steam-operated power plants in Ontario and hydroelectric plants nestling on both sides of the Niagara River and in New York State. Power is traded back and forth among the companies, and regions as demand rises and falls.

The system is called CANUSE, or Canada-United States-Eastern interconnection. When one link in the system needs power, it draws it from another.

Tuesday evening power was moving into Ontario through Niagara Falls from Upstate New York when something happened in a high-voltage line south of Niagara Falls, N.Y.

Then, Ontario hydro officials said, "a surge of electricity" sent power flowing into the system at Cornwall, Ont.—in the opposite direction to the normal flow at that hour. Unchecked, this could have caused enormous damage to distribution equipment.

Technicians at the Richview control center in suburban Toronto spotted the reversal and

New York Paralyzed By Blackout

NEW YORK (AP) — Power coursed anew through New York today after a terror-fraught night of stygian blackout, brought on by a massive electrical failure that paralyzed the city. Lights came back on but transportation remained badly crippled.

The restoration of electricity to the city's millions eased an emergency unmatched in scope outside a war or disaster area.

But commuter train schedules were on a skeleton basis. Subway service was extremely spotty, as power was painstakingly fed into one section at a time of 226 miles of track to prevent overloading.

Public and parochial schools were open for more than a million pupils, but thousands who use public transportation were advised to stay home.

Hospitals treated scores of persons for bone breaks sustained in falls, for heart attacks and for traffic injuries. But miraculously no deaths were reported and the first rosy glow of dawn failed to reveal the misery and tragedy that it was feared the blackness of night was concealing.

Besides lights, water and steam heat were restored to hundreds of apartment dwellings where pumps had failed for lack of electricity.

Coming up with alarming suddenness during Tuesday's evening rush hour, the blackout at its peak enveloped 8,000 square miles, affecting up to 30 million persons in eight states, scrambled transportation and communications and stranded hundreds of thousands in stalled subway cars and elevators.

As the night wore on, power began seeping back into most of the blackout area that at one time stretched over New York, Pennsylvania, Massachusetts, Maine, New Hampshire, Connecticut, Vermont, Rhode Island and even struck Toronto and Ottawa in Canada.

The blackout came with a flickering of lights at about 5:30 p.m. (EST), the peak of the rush hour in teeming cities.

Subway cars speeding an estimated 850,000 persons through New York's subway ground frighteningly to a halt. Elevators stopped between floors bringing cries of dismay. Operating rooms darkened. News tickers fell silent. Airlines scrambled to other ports. Convicts in a Massachusetts prison riot.

Immediately off-duty police were called back to work. National Guardsmen were put on alert in case of looting. Emergency power was plugged in at hospitals.

One man told of being in an elevator in a Manhattan office building: "The lights sputtered out. The three of us pressed the alarm button. We waited and heard nothing. A few minutes later the doors opened. I can tell you we were glad to get out."

A commercial airline pilot winging in for a landing at Boston's Logan International Airport at 5:21 p.m. witnessed "a startling sight. There below is a brightly lit city and suddenly it plunges into darkness. You don't know what to think."

There was a heart-stopping moment at Manhattan's St. Vincent's Hospital when an emergency generator failed during a brain operation. A police generator was pressed into action and the operation was completed. St. Patrick's Cathedral on Fifth Avenue was nearly filled with worried worshippers.

But with the grimness and fear there was also excitement and humor.

A young girl with school books under her arm walked through darkened Times Square and

Probe Pushed In Jet Crash

Flight Recorder May Give Answer

CINCINNATI (AP) — Investigation of a plane crash that claimed 58 lives was under way in full force today with hopes that a damaged flight recorder would reveal the cause of the accident.

Experts said the burning question was why the New York-Cincinnati American Airlines jetliner was flying so low when it crashed into a Kentucky hillside Monday night. It was less than two miles from the airport.

Tired and weary rescuers, meanwhile, continued today to pull the remaining bodies from the seared wreckage. And a crane was to be brought in to remove the engines and larger pieces so they could be studied in detail.

The Civil Aeronautics Board said it could take six months to determine the cause. A public hearing will be held in about two months, a spokesman said.

Some 46 bodies had been taken from the debris by Tuesday night, and the grim process of identifying them was going on at the makeshift morgue at the Greater Cincinnati Airport. The FBI was attempting to make positive identifications through fingerprints and dental plates.

There were four survivors, and investigators hope they will be able to furnish information on the crash of the three-engined Boeing 727. The four still are hospitalized, and authorities said all should recover.

The plane's flight recorder—a basketball-shaped instrument that records minute-by-minute operations from the time of takeoff to landing, was found late Tuesday, badly damaged. It was shipped immediately to Washington.

It was not determined who was at the controls of the plane, which had been in service only five months. Capt. Daniel J. Teelin, 46, the pilot, and his first officer, Capt. William J. O'Neill, 39, were killed. American said both were veteran pilots and that Teelin was acting in a supervisory capacity.

Taft, Solon Debate U.S. Poverty War

CINCINNATI (AP) — Rep. John J. Gilligan, D-Ohio, and Republican Robert Taft Jr., agreed on little in a debate Tuesday night except that it was a pleasure debating each other.

The two Cincinnatians debated before a crowd of 850 at the forum series. Adding interest to the verbal clash were reports that Taft may seek Gilligan's seat in Congress next year.

Gilligan was elected last year when Taft, a former congressman, chose to run for the Senate and was defeated by Sen. Stephen M. Young.

Gilligan supported the Johnson Administration, which was vigorously opposed by Taft.

"We have a program to eliminate poverty which will, in effect, eliminate the welfare state," Gilligan said in supporting the war on poverty.

Saying he feared loss of individual incentive, Taft replied, "We should be concerned with individual as individuals — not in the mass."

Angina Pectoris Attack Blamed for Ike's Illness

FT. GORDON, Ga. (AP) — Former President Dwight D. Eisenhower's doctors reported today he has had a mild attack of angina pectoris, or coronary insufficiency. They said he might be well again in two weeks.

While the heart condition that put the five-star general back in the hospital at age 75 was related to a severe heart attack in 1955, the doctors said this time it was not a heart attack in the same sense.

There has been no more chest pain or discomfort since the original attack that struck around midnight Monday.

Another way of putting what has happened to the former president, the team of physicians agreed, is hardening of the arteries which shut off some of the blood from the heart.

Before the diagnosis was reported Eisenhower had questioned his doctors about his blood pressure. They assured him it was stable at 145.

The general awoke at about 4 a.m. during his second night in Ft. Gordon Army Hospital where he was taken Monday night suffering from chest pains. He told doctors he was hungry and asked for something to eat, just as he had done after a nap Tuesday.

The doctors told the former chief executive he would have to wait until blood tests and a cardiogram had been completed.

The general did not complain, according to a statement issued by the Army public information center, "and promptly returned to the business of sleeping."

The doctors said the patient was "in good spirits." They reported the former president was still in an oxygen tent. However, they maintained—as they did Tuesday — that if Eisenhower suffered a heart attack "by all symptoms and characteristics I certainly was a light one."

In any event, Eisenhower, 75 was reported alert and in excellent spirits—and staying in bed only to please his physicians. Still, he spent some time in an oxygen tent.

Eisenhower, victim of a heart attack in 1955, was stricken with chest pains early Tuesday while he and Mrs. Eisenhower vacationed at the National Golf Club in Augusta. They were sped by Army ambulance to the Ft. Gordon Army hospital, arriving shortly after 2 a.m. EST.

Dr. Thomas W. Mattingly, who treated Eisenhower after his 1955 attack, flew in with John Eisenhower, the former president's son, in a presidential jet.

81-Year-Old Gunwoman Routs Thugs

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—An 81-year-old Columbus woman routed a trio of hoodlums attacking an elderly cab driver early today by blasting away with her revolver from her front porch.

"My eyes aren't so good, and I didn't have my glasses on," said Mrs. Bertha Simmons, a widow. She added that she saw some shadowy forms, but doesn't think she hit anything with her gun.

The three robbers who beat driver Tugh Jackson, 62, with a length of pipe, after chasing him from his cab, fled when Mrs. Simmons started shooting.

Jackson, a cab driver for 25 years, lost $40 in the robbery and required treatment at Grant Hospital for head and face lacerations.

Mrs. Simmons, who lives alone, said she keeps the revolver because of many burglaries and prowlers in her neighborhood.

Federal Officials Seeking Answer To Questions: What Caused Crisis?

WASHINGTON (AP)—Struck with a kind of crisis it's never known before, the federal government groped today for answers to a mounting array of questions.

Foremost: How did it happen, this terrifying blackout that gripped the busiest corner of the United States for most of a night?

And then, immediately: What can be done so that it may never happen again, this sudden stripping away of electric power—the lifeblood of 20th century America?

And overshadowing all of the immediate questions, the chilling military one: Could one man or group of men, secret agents of an enemy power, secretly throw the switches and cut the lines and smash the machinery to paralyze the nation, setting it up for a devastating thermo nuclear attack?

The administration's reaction was swift and emphatic: President Johnson ordered an all-out investigation of the power failure and picked chairman Joseph C. Swidler of the Federal Power Commission to direct it.

But the national security implications of the disaster became clear when the President ordered the Federal Bureau of Investigation to take part in the probe. FBI agents were ordered to walk with power crews along the lines between Niagara Falls and Syracuse, N.Y., to seek the source of the blackout.

And while White House press secretary Bill D. Moyers refused to speculate about possible sabotage, and Johnson was advised by experts that dirty work was unlikely, the question remained: Could it happen? And what can be done to prevent it?

At the Pentagon, the national defense command center and headquarters for all U.S. military communications, the immediate questions raised and answered were not of sabotage and future precautions but of the kitchen of the house, officers said. The telephone, still connected to the sheriff's office, was found beneath her body.

Deputies said papers authorizing the sheriff to take Martin to the Dayton State Hospital had been processed, and he was awaiting a call from Mrs. Martin before going to the home to pick up the husband.

The couple has three other children, Bonnie, 18, and Susan, 19, both of whom are away from home attending college, and a daughter Christine, 8. The mother had sent Christine to a neighbor's house to call the sheriff's office, but apparently had decided to make the call herself from their own telephone when she was shot.

Hospital-Bound Man Kills Wife, Son, Then Himself

XENIA, Ohio (AP)—Authorities said a man awaiting transfer to the Dayton State Hospital shot and killed his wife and nine-year-old son today and then took his own life in their Beavercreek Township home near here.

Leist Named To Board by Flip of Coin

A tie vote between Arthur Leist and Charles Jones, candidates for the Logan Elm Board of Education, has been decided.

Leist was elected to the school board by "tossing a coin." The knot breaker was agreed upon by both candidates.

Each polled 394 votes at last week's election. Neither asked for a recount.

Leist joins Roger Hobbles of Pickaway Twp. and Mrs. Carolyn McCoy, Washington Twp. as newly elected members of the Logan Elm Board. Incumbents are David Bolender, Route 4, and Wesley Graves Jr., Route 1, Kingston.

Baptists Eye Test Of Free Bus Law

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—The State Convention of (Southern) Baptists, in annual conference, was expected today to consider authorizing a court test of Ohio legislation extending public school bus service to parochial schools.

A resolution was likely to be introduced today, with final action probable Thursday, following up a Nov. 4 editorial in the Ohio Baptist Messenger published by the state convention.

The editorial advocated that "A court case to test the constitutionality of the bill... should be initiated by those religious groups who value the principles of separation of church and state."

MUSHROOMS IN THE FALL — Lucille Dumm, a member of the County Board of Elections, told her co-officials during last week's election she had spring mushrooms in her backyard. Some were skeptic. Much to her surprise seven more of the spring delicacies "popped up" in her yard a week later. Several who came to see the mushrooms claim they are the "white sponge" type that grow in early spring. Servicemen Like 'Hometown Flavor'

Yuletide Reminders Voiced By Red Cross Chapter Here

Due to the need for early mailing to servicemen stationed in Viet Nam, the "Voice from Home" program sponsored by the American Red Cross will be conducted on several dates this year.

Pickaway County's Chapter of the Red Cross again will sponsor the program on a local level. According to Mrs. Roliff Wolford, executive secretary, families and friends of men in service who will not be home for Christmas may make tape recordings and have pictures snapped at the Chapter office, Pickaway and Watt Sts. Both will be mailed prior to Christmas.

Arrangements may be made by calling GR 4-5738. Appointments may be made between 1 and 4 p. m. and 7 to 9 p. m.

Nov. 19 and 20 and Nov. 26 and 27.

Mrs. Wolford said the American Red Cross has advised that packages may be mailed by the local chapter to Red Cross field directors in Viet Nam for distribution to armed forces personnel. Interested persons and organizations are invited to call Chapter headquarters for further information.

MILITARY authorities recommend that perishables not be sent. Instead they suggest such articles as paperback books, toilet items, razor blades, pre-sweetened powder drinks or popcorn which can be popped in the container.

In addition to stressing early Christmas mailing to servicemen overseas, the Red Cross has sounded the request that packages contain a "hometown flavor."

The consensus is that American servicemen in Viet Nam, Newfoundland, the Azores, Germany and elsewhere want homemade things like handknit sweaters, candies, cake, pictures of the family, hometown newspapers, American cigars and "surprise me's."

Without doubt, homemade items carry with them an element of personal interest and demonstrate the love and care of relatives and friends back home who took time to prepare them. And generally servicemen can purchase most of his practical needs at base exchanges more inexpensively than folks back home can buy them here.

The United States Post Office recommends that for APO points overseas, surface mail should be sent between Oct. 21, and Nov. 10. Mail and parcels by air should be sent between Dec. 1 and Dec. 10. For the Far East and Southeast Asian destinations, the opening date for each method is recommended.

Veterans Day Observance Slated Here

Veterans' Day will be observed tomorrow throughout the United States as a legal holiday.

With few exceptions, all city, county, state and federal offices will close tomorrow. The citizenry will join in the observance by displaying the American Flag.

As part of the observance, the local VFW Post has prompted Circleville Mayor Ben H. Gordon to sign a proclamation dubbing tomorrow as "Operation Boost."

"Operation Boost", according to VFW Post Commander Merle Thomas, is a nationwide project by the Veterans of Foreign Wars as a counter-measure to demonstrations against American's participation in the Vietnamese war.

Citizens are being asked, Thomas said, to take part in patriotic demonstrations such as Veterans' Day parades and public meetings.

The VFW has also suggested that each individual stop whatever he is doing at 11 a. m. and offer silent prayer for American soldiers now fighting in Vietnam.

She told Ray Castle, a Sydney columnist, that the injury bothered her only when she laughed.

As the night wore on, power began seeping back into most of the blackout area that at one time stretched over New York, Pennsylvania, Massachusetts, Maine, New Hampshire, Connecticut, Vermont, Rhode Island and even struck Toronto and Ottawa in Canada.

The blackout came with a flickering of lights at about 5:30 p.m. (EST), the peak of the rush hour in teeming cities.

Subway cars speeding an estimated 850,000 persons through New York's subway ground frighteningly to a halt. Elevators stopped between floors bringing cries of dismay. Operating rooms darkened. News tickers fell silent. Airlines scrambled to other ports. Convicts in a Massachusetts prison rioted.

Immediately off-duty police were called back to work. National Guardsmen were put on alert in case of looting. Emergency power was plugged in at hospitals.

One man told of being in an elevator in a Manhattan office building: "The lights sputtered out. The three of us pressed the alarm button. We waited and heard nothing. A few minutes later the doors opened. I can tell you we were glad to get out."

A commercial airline pilot winging in for a landing at Boston's Logan International Airport at 5:21 p.m. witnessed "a startling sight. There below is a brightly lighted city and suddenly it plunges into darkness. You don't know what to think."

There was a heart-stopping moment at Manhattan's St. Vincent's Hospital when an emergency generator failed during a brain operation. A police generator was pressed into action and the operation was completed. St. Patrick's Cathedral on Fifth Avenue was nearly filled with worried worshippers.

But with the grimness and fear there was also excitement and humor.

A young girl with school books under her arm walked through darkened Times Square and

Traffic, Safety At New School Will Be Studied

Traffic and safety problems on Nicholas Drive will come under study of a committee appointed last night by the Circleville Board of Education. The project has been launched in relation to the opening of the city's new high school next fall.

The committee was appointed to work with City Council in efforts to coordinate procedures as they relate to traffic problems that are anticipated.

Named to the panel were R. L. Brehmer Jr., Richard Bowers and Robert Elsea. They will work with Council and attempt to solve problems of traffic and safety before school starts next September.

Columbia Gas of Ohio was granted an easement on the north side of Clark Drive to install gas lines for serving the new high school. Construction of the building is progressing on schedule.

A POLICY was adopted by the Board regarding the use and control of school property. The policy listed nine items involving visitors and use of school property.

One of the major items involves children using playgrounds. The policy states that students are encouraged to use playgrounds after school and during the summer months, except that they are not to play within 25 feet of the school building and are never to be on the roof of any building. Play must be discontinued at dark.

Violators, the policy points out, shall be fined not more than $10 or imprisoned not more than ten days or both.

Clair Saam was appointed to assist with junior high basketball coaching. The board indicated his specific duties would be with seventh graders.

Several previously scheduled year-end events were changed due to a recent change in the school calendar. The board rescheduled Baccalaureate for May 29 and Commencement for June 2.

The school board indicated if the proposed Community Action Program is not approved within a reasonable time, it would officially request the establishment of a Neighborhood Youth Program. The program is to be studied further at future meetings.

ALSO in the planning stages, the board authorized Herbert Barrett to investigate the interest and feasibility of establishing adult classes in distributive education. The board noted, however, any proposal would be subject to approval by the State Department of Education.

Superintendent Fritz Jacobs told the board there are several possibilities for such a class and a wide range of titles. One area being considered is the training of waitresses.

Barrett was given board sanction to probe the matter and make a recommendation to Jacobs, which would be studied in depth by the board.

It was pointed out that such a program would be financed on a 50-50 basis between the state department and persons registering for the classes.

Jacobs presented to the board a composite of a follow-up study made with the classes of 1963-64. Jacobs noted the studies are being made in an effort to improve the curriculum. Graduates are contacted as to what they are now doing and those in college are questioned as to what subjects, not offered, would be beneficial to them while in college.

Violators, the policy points out, shall be fined not more than $10 or imprisoned not more than ten days or both.

Serving in Malaysia

Peace Corps Duty Requires Extensive Field Training

EDITOR'S NOTE — This is one of several installments prepared for The Herald by Bruce Chelikowsky, a Circleville resident now serving with the Peace Corps in Malaysia. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Rudy Chelikowsky, 160 Montclair Ave. His first report describes three months of intensive training in Hawaii, undertaken to prepare him for the demanding job ahead. Next: Arrival in Malaysia and a brief history of the country.

On Feb. 7, 1965, 99 people from all parts of the United States arrived in Hilo, Hawaii, to begin three months training in preparation for a Peace Corps assignment overseas.

Our day began at 7 a. m. and often it was 9 p. m. before it ended. We started out with the study of Malay, Bahasa Kebangsaan, which will become the national language of Malaysia in 1967.

Before the end of the day, we had three additional classes of Malay. This was integrated with courses of study in area studies (concerning South East Asia, Malaysia in particular), world affairs, Communism, American studies, teaching English as a foreign language, customs of Malaysia, environmental health, physical education and technical training — which encompassed such things as vegetable gardening, livestock raising, the use of bamboo as a building material and other such skills.

All of this was supplemented by additional guest lecturers. The main topic in these lectures was community development. In addition, since our group was comprised of nurses, medical technicians, foresters, agriculturalists, secretaries, sanitarians, 4-H organizers and generalists, for community development, everyone received training in his or her skills as they would be applied to the job waiting in Malaysia.

Finally, we all had the opportunity to shine and show off all that we had learned from the lectures on animal raising, gardening and the like. We spent two weeks in Waipio Valley on the island of Hawaii. This was called our transition training.

We walked into the Valley, from 2,000 feet above sea level to sea level in the distance of a little more than a mile. Two weeks later we walked out again with full packs.

During our two-week stay there, we were subjected to "hardship" conditions, such as sleeping on the floor, cooking our own food (we had a few people sick, but everyone survived), bathing and washing our clothes in the river (we were used to cold water, as we hadn't seen anything else since arriving in Hawaii), and using the typical Asian-type toilet.

Our activities were composed of planting a garden, feeding and looking after pigs, ducks, rabbits and goats (some of which we later slaughtered after learning the proper technique, the cuts of meat, how to smoke and salt), building huts, rabbit hutches, water seal toilets plus general camp maintenance. It really was more enjoyable than full of hardship, even though it rained half of the time (150 inches per year), because it helped to break the monotony of an 11-hour class day.

We continued to pursue the language here. In fact, it was the official language of the Valley. Many of the staff spoke Malay, so we had to also.

Perhaps the most difficult thing to do was to bargain with the language instructors for our food. We had 11 teachers from Malaysia and one from Sabah.

A menu would be posted, we would go to the market, order what was needed, then bargain to get a decent price. We were given only so much money for the two weeks, and were to live within this amount. You can imagine how well we knew the language after only four weeks — not exactly fluent, but no one starved.

During training, several people left for either medical or personal reasons, 18 in all. Plus this, a selection board met twice during our training program and an evaluation of everyone in the group was made.

This evaluation is based on our instructor's comments, our fellow trainees. We rated everyone in the group according to number one and so on down the line.

One board is held at the end of six weeks. The final one is held just at the end of training. Through this process, we lost 14 people, some of them good friends and all people whom I'm fortunate to have known.

In the short period of three months of living and working and playing so closely together, friendships were quickly built, the kind which would last. For this reason, the deselection made our selection a little less bright than normal.

On May 1, 1965, along with 66 other trainees headed for Malaysia and 89 for Thailand, I was sworn in as a Peace Corps Volunteer. It was a strange feeling. But I felt it an honor to be a part of such a worthwhile organization.

From May 2, until May 8, we were free in Honolulu or any of the Hawaiian chain of islands. It was a short vacation before embarking upon a long journey and tremendous experience.

I spent my time on and around the island of Oahu. It was simply great, as was the stay on the island of Hawaii where we trained.

I cannot put into words the tremendous hospitality exhibited by these people, the beautiful sights such as snow peaked mountains, red glowing active volcanoes, majestic waterfalls and streams weaving in and around the beautifully green landscape dotted with the reds, yellows and blues of the unusual but beautiful flowers of Hawaii.

There are just not enough adjectives to adequately express my opinion of the 13 weeks spent in Hawaii. But I can say that I loved it and hope to go back. Rather a fitting way, I think, to spend my last days in the United States for two years.

My trip from Honolulu took me to Wake Island and Tokyo for refueling, with a short stop in Hong Kong to change planes. From Hong Kong, we flew to Kuala Lumpur, Malaysia, passing over South Vietnam in route. Since we had crossed the International Date Line, it was now Monday, May 10.

Survey Launched On Labor Supply

A survey to determine the available labor supply in a broad area that includes Pickaway County has been undertaken by the Ohio State Employment Service and the Logan Trade Club in Hocking County.

The survey has been extended to several counties with the hope of getting a complete picture of the labor pool aailable for prospective new industries and expansion of existing ones. Information compiled will be of value to all cities and towns in the multiple-county area where the study is being conducted.

Promoters of the survey note that important decisions concerning the industrial future of all communities concerned may hinge on results obtained. The objective is to provide factual information on the number of workers available for employment in future negotiations with prospective industries.

Logan Trade Club spokesmen emphasized that this information is not sought for any specific industry and has no direct connection with employment at the new Lockheed plant that is to be built at Logan.

Readers of this newspaper are urged to cooperate in the effort. All available workers are requested to fill out survey forms as listed below and mail them to the Ohio State Employment Service, 30 S. Spring St., Logan, Ohio, 43138. Prompt replies are essential.

Peace Corps Duty — Bruce Chelikowsky (center) son of Mr. and Mrs. Rudy Chelikowsky of 160 Montclair Ave., took time out for this picture during an extensive Peace Corps training session in Hawaii. He is now serving in Malaysia. The Circleville volunteer is flanked here by two Peace Corps buddies. The first in a series of stories describing his fascinating experiences is published below.

Serving in Malaysia

Peace Corps Duty Requires Extensive Field Training

EDITOR'S NOTE — This is one of several installments prepared for The Herald by Bruce Chelikowsky, a Circleville resident now serving with the Peace Corps in Malaysia. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Rudy Chelikowsky, 160 Montclair Ave. His first report describes three months of intensive training in Hawaii, undertaken to prepare him for the demanding job ahead. Next: Arrival in Malaysia and a brief history of the country.

On Feb. 7, 1965, 99 people from all parts of the United States arrived in Hilo, Hawaii, to begin three months training in preparation for a Peace Corps assignment overseas.

Our day began at 7 a. m. and often it was 9 p. m. before it ended. We started out with the study of Malay, Bahasa Kebangsaan, which will become the national language of Malaysia in 1967.

Before the end of the day, we had three additional classes of Malay. This was integrated with courses of study in area studies (concerning South East Asia, Malaysia in particular), world affairs, Communism, American studies, teaching English as a foreign language, customs of Malaysia, environmental health, physical education and technical training — which encompassed such things as vegetable gardening, livestock raising, the use of bamboo as a building material and other such skills.

All of this was supplemented by additional guest lecturers. The main topic in these lectures was community development. In addition, since our group was comprised of nurses, medical technicians, foresters, agriculturalists, secretaries, sanitarians, 4-H organizers and generalists, for community development, everyone received training in his or her skills as they would be applied to the job waiting in Malaysia.

Finally, we all had the opportunity to shine and show off all that we had learned from the lectures on animal raising, gardening and the like. We spent two weeks in Waipio Valley on the island of Hawaii. This was called our transition training.

We walked into the Valley, from 2,000 feet above sea level to sea level in the distance of a little more than a mile. Two weeks later we walked out again with full packs.

During our two-week stay there, we were subjected to "hardship" conditions, such as sleeping on the floor, cooking our own food (we had a few people sick, but everyone survived), bathing and washing our clothes in the river (we were used to cold water, as we hadn't seen anything else since arriving in Hawaii), and using the typical Asian-type toilet.

Our activities were composed of planting a garden, feeding and looking after pigs, ducks, rabbits and goats (some of which we later slaughtered after learning the proper technique, the cuts of meat, how to smoke and salt), building huts, rabbit hutches, water seal toilets plus general camp maintenance. It really was more enjoyable than full of hardship, even though it rained half of the time (150 inches per year), because it helped to break the monotony of an 11-hour class day.

We continued to pursue the language here. In fact, it was the official language of the Valley. Many of the staff spoke Malay, so we had to also.

Perhaps the most difficult thing to do was to bargain with the language instructors for our food. We had 11 teachers from Malaya and one from Sabah.

A menu would be posted, we would go to the market, order what was needed, then bargain to get a decent price. We were given only so much money for the two weeks, and were to live within this amount. You can imagine how well we knew the language after only four weeks — not exactly fluent, but no one starved.

During training, several people left for either medical or personal reasons, 18 in all. Plus this, a selection board met twice during our training program and an evaluation of everyone in the group was made.

This evaluation is based on our instructor's comments, our fellow trainees. We rated everyone in the group according to number one and so on down the line.

One board is held at the end of six weeks. The final one is held just at the end of training. Through this process, we lost 14 people, some of them good friends and all people whom I'm fortunate to have known.

In the short period of three months of living and working and playing so closely together, friendships were quickly built, the kind which would last. For this reason, the deselection made our selection a little less bright than normal.

On May 1, 1965, along with 66 other trainees headed for Malaysia and 89 for Thailand, I was sworn in as a Peace Corps Volunteer. It was a strange feeling. But I felt it an honor to be a part of such a worthwhile organization.

From May 2, until May 8, we were free in Honolulu or any of the Hawaiian chain of islands. It was a short vacation before embarking upon a long journey and tremendous experience.

I spent my time on and around the island of Oahu. It was simply great, as was the stay on the island of Hawaii where we trained.

I cannot put into words the tremendous hospitality exhibited by these people, the beautiful sights such as snow peaked mountains, red glowing active volcanoes, majestic waterfalls and streams weaving in and around the beautifully green landscape dotted with the reds, yellows and blues of the unusual but beautiful flowers of Hawaii.

There are just not enough adjectives to adequately express my opinion of the 13 weeks spent in Hawaii. But I can say that I loved it and hope to go back. Rather a fitting way, I think, to spend my last days in the United States for two years.

My trip from Honolulu took me to Wake Island and Tokyo for refueling, with a short stop in Hong Kong to change planes. From Hong Kong, we flew to Kuala Lumpur, Malaysia, passing over South Vietnam in route. Since we had crossed the International Date Line, it was now Monday, May 10.

5,000 Yule Greetings Slated to 'Thank' GIs

LUBBOCK, Tex. (AP)—Residents of men's dormitory No. 9, housing 538 Texas Tech students, voted Tuesday to send 5,000 Christmas cards to U.S. fighting men in Viet Nam.

"Because of you," the cards will read, "Americans breathe a little easier, sleep a little sounder and walk a little taller, Merry Christmas and thanks."

JOHNSON CITY, Tex. (AP)—President Johnson has proclaimed Nov. 28 "a day of dedication and prayer" to honor all those "who are risking their lives to bring about a just peace in South Viet Nam."

City Firemen Make Two Runs

Circleville Firemen were called to the Presbyterian parsonage at 122 Collins Court at 12:40 p. m. yesterday when an electrical short caused a clothes dryer to overheat. No damage was reported.

At 3:12 p. m., a voltage regulator on an automobile owned by Ernie Minor, Route 2, caused a fire in the electrical system.

The auto was parked behind Boyer's Hardware on S. Court St. Firemen estimated damage at $30.

Survey Launched On Labor Supply

A survey to determine the available labor supply in a broad area that includes Pickaway County has been undertaken by the Ohio State Employment Service and the Logan Trade Club in Hocking County.

The survey has been extended to several counties with the hope of getting a complete picture of the labor pool available for prospective new industries and expansion of existing ones. Information compiled will be of value to all cities and towns in the multiple-county area where the study is being conducted.

Promoters of the survey note that important decisions concerning the industrial future of all communities concerned may hinge on results obtained. The objective is to provide factual information on the number of workers available for employment in future negotiations with prospective industries.

Logan Trade Club spokesmen emphasized that this information is not sought for any specific industry and has no direct connection with employment at the new Lockheed plant that is to be built at Logan.

Readers of this newspaper are urged to cooperate in the effort. All available workers are requested to fill out survey forms as listed below and mail them to the Ohio State Employment Service, 30 S. Spring St., Logan, Ohio, 43138. Prompt replies are essential.

British Watchdogs

The British House of Commons, like the U. S. Congress, is looking into ways of reforming its procedures. But the Labor government has promptly squelched one idea that has emerged from the special Commons committee conducting the study.

This is a proposal that Commons, like Congress, set up specialized committees to keep tab on foreign affairs, defense and other specific activities of government. The possibilities are as endless in London as they are in Washington, where the committees keep cabinet and department officials parading before them to explain themselves and their legislative proposals.

But there's quite a difference between the British and American legislative systems, and this suggests that

Monkeying with Buzz Saw

Here's a hair-raiser — or it could be. It's the little disclosure, blandly put forward, that Peace Corps officials are turning to American student "activists" for advice on recruiting and training "politically motivated" volunteers for overseas service.

What is potentially dangerous about this is that the student activists who are currently being interviewed and consulted by Peace Corps regional directors are extremely hazy about the difference between group action that involves organization on a voluntary social basis, and action that moves directly into the political arena, where passions run high. The latter type of action, if indulged in by American boys and girls on "loan" to help with community projects in Bolivia, Peru or wherever, could be more explosive than any amount of undercover manipulations by the CIA. "Political motivations" move quickly into partisanship — and if the partisanship should go against the dominant grain of what a Kennedy or some other strong local leader wants, the United States would quickly be accused or intolerable meddling.

Specifically, what is worrisome about the Peace Corps effort to get away from non-political recruits is that it has directed its first appeal for guidance to the Students for a Democratic Society. This SDS has been a ringleader in organizing the many protests against the Johnson foreign policy in South Vietnam. Originally formed as a campus affiliate of the League standing investigation committees are of lesser urgency in Parliament. All British cabinet members, including the prime minister himself, are on the floor speaking for the government, promoting its policies and being directly challenged in regular question periods.

In the United States, no cabinet member or other executive official sits in Congress, making committees the arenas for tossing questions.

Prime Minister Wilson and leaders of the Conservative opposition are reported agreed that having to account to watchdog committees would weaken the cabinet's authority. This is a familiar complaint in Washington, too, but in Britain the legislative and executive branches are already bridged.

By John Chamberlain

for Industrial Democracy, the SDS has maneuvered on the fringes of civil disobedience in such blatant ways that its parent body has had to sever any organizational connection with it. The LID has tax-exempt status, which means that it is not supposed to finance street demonstrations and agitation against the draft.

The extent that any political youth group can have an ideology in these pragmatic and "existentialist" days, the SDS is socialist. In this it is the true child of the LID, which adheres to Marxism of the legalist social democratic variety. There is no reason why socialist youths should not work for the Peace Corps, provided they do not mix in the hot politics that grow out of clashes between varieties of Marxism in the underdeveloped countries. But the record of the Students for a Democratic Society does not reveal cool-headedness in hte presence of political temptation. The parent LID has had no success whatever in drilling its youthful offspring in the difference between parliamentary tactics and direct action against the State.

The old Marxist social democrats believed in the "three arms of the labor movement," the political party, the trade union and the consumer cooperative. They did not go in for street brawling or breaking uncgenial laws. But the whole push of the SDS has been for an "engagement" that goes beyond organizing a legalist political party or a union or a cooperative.

Try Living with a Beatle Type

By ROBERT FORD
(For Hal Boyle)
DALLAS, Tex. (AP) — If nothing ever happens in your life, try living with a eatle type. The world takes on a different look if you have a guitar plucker in your house.

And if you have one guitarist, I assure you that you soon will be mixed up with other guitarists, a drummer, perhaps a saxophonist, an organist or pianist. These form a modern-age

"combo," and the way the Dallas Galaxies grew is a typical episode in a national phenomenon.

A combo is any small group of musicians which plays the sort of music to which you can Watusi or Frug or whatever bone crackers they do these days.

The Galaxies are all high schoolers and for high school youngsters they are getting rich.

The members are Steve Connor, a letter-man football player until his doctor stopped him; Frank Scheffler, a basketballer; Monty Oakley, who spends his spare time helping the handicapped; and my own joy, Garry Ford, who has sung in the church choir and is in the school chorus.

If adults believe they can impose their music on teen-agers, listen to what happened the other night.

Some people gave a teen-ager party with an orchestra which plays "The Blue Danube" and "Tea for Two" beautifully. But the party took on the aura of a funeral.

The host desperately dialed the Galaxies for emergency help. The combo loaded a quarter ton of drums, guitars and amplifiers into their cars and walked into the party amid rolling applause.

Then everyone had a blast,

It all began in our household when our youngster asked for a guitar.

His mother, Virginia, a singer and pianist, sniffed at the whole idea but bought him a folk guitar, surrendering precious trading stamps for it.

Before long, he graduated to an electric guitar complete with amplifier.

The Galaxies didn't jell until this summer. Musicians flowed in and out. Some didn't have the musicianship. Some had conflicting interests, such as girls.

Now the Galaxies do well. They played five engagements one recent weekend, although that is unusual, with pay of $10 to $20 for each youth for each engagement.

Practice sessions are wild. They can't play two bars without a 10-minute critique. A dozen pals lounge around the den and comment, frequently harshly.

Like all persons of the age who think Lawrence Welk is a real swinger, I had visions of combo parties ending in wild chaos.

But the parents have had no moral issues to decide, which speaks loud and clear for the overwhelming majority of the younger generation.

Some day they may even grow up to like "Tea for Two" — too.

What is the difference between multiple sclerosis and cerebral sclerosis?

Multiple sclerosis is a disease whose origin is still unknown. The brain, the spinal cord and the nerve leading from them are affected and produce many varied symptoms in widely distributed parts of the body.

One of the strange characteristics of multiple sclerosis is that there are varying periods of severity followed by periods of temporary subsidence of symptoms.

Cerebral sclerosis is one of a group of conditions that affects the brain. Sometimes the signs and symptoms can be confused with multiple sclerosis.

The difference between multiple sclerosis and cerebral sclerosis demands the most intensive study and observation. Sometimes, the pattern must be studied over a long period before the exact diagnosis is established.

Both disorders have resisted the exact knowledge of their origin or cure, although marked advances seem to be on the scientific horizon.

What tests are used to decide if anyone is deaf or hard of hearing?

The distinction between deafness and hard of hearing is purely a technical one. There is only one real way to evaluate hearing or deafness. If a person cannot hear over the telephone, comfortably listen to the radio and television and carry on normal social conversations, he must be considered deaf.

Hearing can be tested by the spoken and whispered voice. A watch tick is a poor guide to hearing.

A good test for hearing is performed with tuning forks. With these simple instruments, the whole range of sounds necessary for serviceable hearing can be studied.

A more reliable test is done with an instrument, the audiometer. With it hearing can be studied and recorded for future comparison.

The history of the course of the deafness, the tuning forks, and the audiometer can give a most reliable indication of the character of the deafness, its cause and its treatment.

There are now many more complex instruments which can help the physician to determine if the hearing deficiency can be remedied by medical or surgical treatment.

The Business World

By PHILIP J. KEUPER
AP Business News Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Private aviation, an industry that was supposed to take off after World War II, sputtered and coughed for years. Today it is booming.

Business flying, based on a maxim that every minute of an executive's time means money, is providing the main thrust for the private plane industry.

This year there were more than 90,000 nonmilitary, non-commercial airplanes in the United States, almost three times the total in 1946. At New York's La Guardia Airport, where the concentration of such aircraft is among the heaviest, these planes land or take off at the rate of one every other minute during peak hours.

Though rising income and growing interest in flying have fueled the private plane boom — 275,000 Americans hold private pilot licenses—company purchases of planes have provided the biggest boost to sales, particularly in more expensive aircraft. Corporate air fleets range from sleek light planes to 570-mile-an-hour jets that seat 10 passengers.

Even railroads use private planes. Chesapeake & Ohio Railway has four twin-engine planes to move executives to some meetings. Chicago & North Western uses a twin-engine light plane and a turboprop.

A mushrooming use of business jets has attracted military and major commercial airplane producers into the field. Grumman Aircraft Engineering Corp. is building a business jet that will cost more than $2 million. Lockheed's business jet sells for $1.6 million. Last month, Boeing announced it would make a jet for corporation use.

Less glamorous but far more plentiful are small propeller-driven aircraft largely produced by three major specialists in the light plane field: Beech Aircraft, Cessna Aircraft and Piper. Sales at the factory level of business and pleasure aircraft made by these companies soared last year to $176 million. In 1950, they amounted to only $19 million.

Increases in plushness and power have brought increases in price. The average private plane today sells for $22,000; the cheapest at about $7,000. The two-seater, single-engine aircraft of the 1940s cost $1,700 to $3,000.

2. determine the most realistic cost to enact such a program; 3. call for a special "levy" so that the people can support such a program; 4. insist that the Circleville City Council and the Pickaway County Commissioners support the Berger Hospital, as spelled out in the hospital charter, until such a program is firmly established.

I voted against the "stop-gap" measure. But I would support such a "Program for Progress" with all my heart!

EARL D. BOEN

Dear Sir:

Defeat of the Berger Hospital tax levy has proven that the majority of voters are not in favor of "stop-gap" measures. The Board of Governors of Berger Hospital must now originate a definite "Program for Progress" or close the doors.

There is a great need for the addition of these qualified people to manage the hospital: four "resident" physicians; one hospital administrator; one (combination) office manager-personnel director; one "skilled" purchasing agent.

The combined salaries of these people would exceed $100,000 per year.

Four resident physicians are needed — one for each 8-hour shift and the fourth one to fill-in on days off, weekends, vacations, when a doctor becomes ill and on emergency cases when more than one doctor is needed.

You can easily see, from all this, that the $70,000 a year expected from the defeated half-mill levy was, in no way, allowing for progressive action.

Here are a few ideas that I feel would help put Berger Hospital back on its feet:

1. Have the Community Fund officers establish a quota for Berger;
2. Establish the "medicare" program;
3. Persuade the Pickaway County Welfare Board to send more Welfare patients to Berger;
4. Establish the "Ellen Leist School of Nursing." Student nurses are a vital part of the labor force in any hospital. This would reduce the cost of manual labor considerably and give our community a ready supply of graduate nurses after the first class graduates;
5. Build a "Medical Arts" building on the hospital grounds. Rent these office suites to doctors of varying specialties. These offices being adjacent to the hospital would encourage young doctors to settle in Circleville. They could use the hospital facilities and equipment without having to buy so much of their own.

To establish such a "Program for Progress" would cost about $200,000 a year. However, once it was established and operating, Berger Hospital should make money over and above operating costs.

I propose to the "Board of Governors" that they: 1. establish a Program for Progress;

To the Editor:

Recently a letter was published from the president of the Pickaway County Contractor's Assn. condemning City Council for defeat of the Columbus Building Code which they hoped would be adopted for Circleville. I do not wish to offer apologies or excuses for my negative vote, but just personal observations and conclusions.

In considering this code at various meetings, we did offer our objections and suggested changes. But these were disregarded. The Contractor's Assn. tried to lead us to believe this was the only workable code for Circleville although it is in the process of being revised by Columbus at the present time.

The reasons for my negative vote were:

1. After considering the financial status of the City of Circleville and the urgent need for more funds in other departments, I could not support the cost of this code. The Contractor's Assn. stated it would be self-supporting. But this was purely speculation.
2. I am also against a Board of Examiners as an added cost and possibly more problems. I feel that a Building Inspector, under Civil Service, serving under the Safety Department, would be sufficient.
3. In considering this Code we, as City Councilmen, should consider all the facts and must remember we represent the people of Circleville as a whole and not just the Contractor's Assn.

In summing up my personal opinions I wish to state that I feel very strongly the city of Circleville needs a Building Code. I sincerely hope that in the near future we can again consider adopting a simplified one which the common layman will be able to read and understand.

Efforts put forth by the Contractor's Assn. were very much appreciated. But I am sorry this had to be turned into a political issue. In voting for issues that come before Council I try to weigh all the facts, then vote the way I feel is best for the people of Circleville, not the way someone tells me to vote.

BAZAAR PREPARATIONS — Several members of Berger Hospital Guild No. 39 put finishing touches on articles for the annual Christmas Bazaar. The event will be held 2-8 p. m. Nov. 19 in the basement of the Eagles Home, E. Main St.

Women of Church Plan Annual Country Store

The women of St. Philip's Episcopal Church, 129 W. Mound St., will hold their annual Country Store beginning 10 a. m. Tuesday in the parish house. Heading the committee is Mrs. Walter Sale, president of St. Philip's Guild.

As in past years, the Country Store will have for sale soups, homemade noodles, parched corn, mush, and herb bread, as well as rolls, cakes, candy, cookies, butter and preserves. In charge of the food sales will be Mrs. William Radcliff and Mrs. John Dunlap, along with Mrs. Nannie Davis.

The apron table will be in charge of Mrs. Ralph Haines, Mrs. E. E. Clifton and Mrs. W. B. Caskey. Mrs. Howard B. Moore will direct the book table, Mrs. William Goodchild and Mrs. David S. Craven will supervise the white elephant table and Mrs. Maynard Eaton will preside at the St. Anne's Guild table.

A cafeteria luncheon will be served beginning at 11 a. m., with Mrs. William W. Weldon in charge. The menu will include hot chicken sandwiches, chicken and noodles, John marzetti, tossed salad, French bread, and homemade layer cake. Working with Mrs. Weldon will be Mrs. Robert Call, Mrs. Joe Brooks, Mrs. Walter Howard, Mrs. Henry Miga and Mrs. William Huber.

Mrs. James Stallings will supervise the dining room. Working with her will be Mrs. Leora Sayre, Mrs. Clarence Brown, Mrs. Donald Goodchild, Mrs. Stanley Lasoski, Mrs. Frank Moore and Mrs. Earl Palm.

Others assisting will be Mrs. Guy Jacobs, Mrs. Mike Sparks, Mrs. John Hope, Mrs. Proctor Baughman, Mrs. Paul Bowman, Mrs. Don Dodge and Mrs. Mike Harrison. Mrs. R. L. Brehmer Jr. and Mrs. Robert Call will serve as cashiers. The calling committee members were Mrs. Fred Howell, Miss Margaret Mattinson and Mrs. Charles Pugsley.

Dinner Meeting Conducted

Women of Emmett Chapel Church served the Order of Eastern Star District 23 dinner held recently in the Masonic Temple.

Artificial fall arrangements with a gold horse shoe in each one decorated the tables. A favor of a small gold loving cup centered on a colored star was at each place.

Marie L. Hamilton, past grand matron, reminded those present that many chapters and districts have never had a Grand Appointment and that District No. 23 through the years has provided the following grand officers: S. Isabelle Bolin, worthy grand matron, Circleville Chapter No. 90; Eva J. Penn, worthy grand matron, Royal Chapter No. 29, Washington C. H.; C. C. Chapplear, worthy grand patron, Circleville Chapter No. 90; Marie L. Hamilton, worthy grand matron, Circleville Chapter No. 90.

After dinner members adjourned to the chapter room where entertainment was provided by The Humboldt Masonic Glee Club of Columbus. A musical skit was presented by Max Carlson, director, Damon Judy, Ed Wilhelm and Ralph Knipner;

a guitar solo was presented by Dave Hathaway, Elzie Radcliffe, assistant director presented three vocal selections.

Refreshments were served from tables decorated with a large wooden bowl of fruit, gourds and artificial foliage. The tea tables were centered with orange candles in a loaf of bread surrounded by artificial fall leaves, nuts, gourds and foliage.

Mrs. Beatrice Yingling, Kingston Chapter No. 411, Mrs. Ruth Cline, Waverly Chapter No. 99 presided at the silver service and Mrs. Edna West, junior past deputy grand matron, Heber Chapter No. 62, Williamsport and Mrs. Margaret Remy, worthy matron, Purity Chapter No. 65, New Holland attended the punch bowls.

Committees for the evening were: Mrs. Mary E. Radcliffe, president; Mrs. Alma Noble, vice president; New Holland; Mrs. Wanda Kitchen, secretary; Adelphi; Mrs. Nellie Hardman, treasurer, Jeffersonville; favors — Mrs. Betty Liston; refreshments — Mrs. Elaine Bowman, Mrs. Gladys Robinson, Mrs. Beverly Currance, Mrs. Mary Agin, Mrs. Mary E. McDonald and Mrs. Irma Sharpe.

Dr. Hall Addresses CCL

Mrs. William Richards was hostess for the November Child Conservation League meeting.

Mrs. Glenn McCoy called the meeting to order and welcomed guests. She announced that contributions to the Revolving Scholarship Fund have been received from local organizations.

Mrs. Walter Yamarick requested members bring a can goods and a toy or donation to the December meeting for the Christmas food basket. Mrs. Kenneth Hannan distributed the names of those participating in the Goodie Basket Project.

The speaker, Dr. Nason Hall Jr., assistant professor of sociology at Ohio State University, was introduced by Mrs. C. K. Vaughn.

Dr. Hall discussed the three-year program currently in progress in selected Columbus schools. He said this program, which is financed by a grant from the National Institute of Mental Health, endeavors to rehabilitate seventh grade boys from low economic levels.

Research indicates that these boys have a poorly defined definition of work, school and law enforcement. He said they have negative conceptions of their own worth and their father's worth. Also they have very fatalistic attitudes about the outcome of their lives and feel there is little they can do to change their position.

Research has also indicated these boys can identify best with male teachers. Therefore, only male teachers amenable to change and experimentation are recommended by their principals to participate in this program. Their special training covers classroom control of delinquency prone boys, discipline through mutual respect and emphasizes the individual worth. Through this program the schools hope to develop the positive attitudes in these young boys which will consequently lead them to the fulfillment of a productive life.

The next meeting will be the Christmas Silver Tea to be held in the home of Mrs. Richard Moore. Members may make guest reservations with a member of the tea committee by Dec. 2.

Salem WSCS Members Hold Session

The Salem WSCS met recently in the home of Mrs. George Minshall. Mrs. Fairy Alkire used "American Thanksgiving" as her theme for the worship service. Mrs. Ira Barr led the group in singing.

Mrs. Ned Boldoser was in charge of the business meeting. Mrs. Vera Miller reported that she had received the first order of pecans and distributed them to members to sell. Marie Boldoser was appointed to collect the money and keep an account of pecans sold.

Birthday dues were paid by Mrs. Marie Boldoser, Mrs. Gerald Patrick, Mrs. Alva Dyer and Miss Edna Rice. Plans were completed for a rummage sale to be held on Saturday at Beckett's, 119 E. Franklin St. The traveling gift was won by Mrs. Donald Adams.

Mrs. Ira Barr led a discussion on the "Crusade for Higher Education".

The WCTU and WSCS will join together for their Christmas meeting to be held Dec. 2 at the Salem Methodist Church. The WCTU will furnish the punch and the WSCS will furnish the cookies. A dollar gift exchange will be held.

Mrs. Ned Boldoser assisted the hostess. A dessert course was served to 22 members and five guests, Mrs. Fred Minshall, Loretta Alcorn, Kim Parmer, Bobby and Patty Minshall.

Study Scheduled On Stilton Cheese

NOTTINGHAM England (AP) — David Middleton, a post-graduate research student at Nottingham University, has a grant from the British Milk Marketing Board to investigate stilton cheese.

His object is to find out just what stilton cheese is. "People know how a stilton cheese is made," Middleton said, "But nobody knows exactly what it is."

The study of stilton won't be received to well by many Britons who are very proud of their cheese which is somewhat like Italy's gorgonzola.

In fact, the Oxford Dictionary describes stilton as a "superior English cheese."

Wedding Vows Exchanged

MR. AND MRS. RICHARD WALKER

Grove City Methodist Church was the setting for the marriage of Miss Virginia Kay Markham, daughter of Lt. Col. Thomas Markham, Grove City, and Mr. Richard Walker, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Walker, W. Mill St.

The Rev. Eugene Frazer officiated at the 7:30 p. m. candlelight double ring ceremony Sept. 18.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride chose as her attendants, Mrs. Donald Houck as matron of honor and Marriana Ford and Rae Jean Jewett as bridesmaids.

Mr. Robert Walker served his brother as best man. Mr. Robert Roof and Mr. Donald Houck were ushers.

A reception was held at the church.

The bride is a graduate of Grove City High School and is employed as a premium accountant at Nationwide Insurance Company.

Mr. Walker graduated from Circleville High School, served three years in the U. S. Navy, and is employed as an electrician at Du Pont.

Meeting Scheduled Tuesday by Nurses

Registered and Graduate Nurses will meet 8 p. m. Tuesday in the home of Mrs. Ralph Bryant, 1053 Mulberry Road.

BAAZAR PREPARATIONS — Several members of Berger Hospital Guild No. 39 put finishing touches on articles for the annual Christmas Bazaar. The event will be held 2-8 p. m. Nov. 19 in the basement of the Eagles Home, E. Main St.

Women of Church Plan Annual Country Store

The women of St. Philip's Episcopal Church, 129 W. Mound St., will hold their annual Country Store beginning 10 a. m. Tuesday in the parish house. Heading the committee is Mrs. Walter Sale, president of St. Philip's Guild.

As in past years, the Country Store will have for sale soups, homemade noodles, parched corn, mush, and herb bread, as well as rolls, cakes, candy, cookies, butter and preserves. In charge of the food sales will be Mrs. William Radcliffe and Mrs. John Dunlap, along with Mrs. Nannie Davis.

The apron table will be in charge of Mrs. Ralph Haines, Mrs. E. E. Clifton and Mrs. W. B. Caskey. Mrs. Howard B. Moore will direct the book table, Mrs. William Goodchild and Mrs. David S. Craven will supervise the white elephant table and Mrs. Maynard Eaton will preside at the St. Anne's Guild table.

A cafeteria luncheon will be served beginning at 11 a. m. with Mrs. William W. Weldon in charge. The menu will include hot chicken sandwiches, chicken and noodles, john marzetti, tossed salad, French bread, and homemade layer cake. Working with Mrs. Weldon will be Mrs. Robert Call, Mrs. Joe Brooks, Mrs. Walter Howard, Mrs. Henry Miga and Mrs. William Huber.

Mrs. James Stallings will supervise the dining room. Working with her will be Mrs. Leora Sayre, Mrs. Clarence Brown, Mrs. Donald Goodchild, Mrs. Stanley Lasoski, Mrs. Frank Moore and Mrs. Earl Palm.

Others assisting will be Mrs. Guy Jacobs, Mrs. Mike Sparks, Mrs. John Hope, Mrs. Proctor Baughman, Mrs. Paul Bowman, Mrs. Don Dodge and Mrs. Mike Harrison. Mrs. R. L. Brehmer Jr. and Mrs. Robert Call will serve as cashiers. The calling committee members were Mrs. Fred Howell, Miss Margaret Mattinson and Mrs. Charles Pugsley.

Dinner Meeting Conducted

Women of Emmett Chapel Church served the Order of Eastern Star District 23 dinner held recently in the Masonic Temple.

Artificial fall arrangements with a gold horse shoe in each one decorated the tables. A favor of a small gold loving cup centered on a colored star was at each place.

Marie L. Hamilton, past grand matron, reminded those present that many chapters and districts have never had a Grand Appointment and that District No. 23 through the years has provided the following grand officers: S. Isobelle Boin, worthy grand matron, Circleville Chapter No. 90; Eva J. Penn, worthy grand matron, Royal Chapter No. 29, Washington C. H.; C. C. Chappellear, worthy grand patron, Circleville Chapter No. 90; Marie L. Hamilton, worthy grand matron, Circleville Chapter No. 90.

After dinner members adjourned to the chapter room where entertainment was provided by The Humboldt Masonic Glee Club of Columbus. A musical skit was presented by Max Carlson, director, Damon Judy, Ed Wilhelm and Ralph Knipfer;

a guitar solo was presented by Dave Hathaway, Elzie Radcliffe, assistant director presented three vocal selections.

Refreshments were served from tables decorated with a large wooden bowl of fruit, gourds and artificial foliage. The tea tables were centered with orange candles in a loaf of bread surrounded by artificial fall leaves, nuts, gourds and foliage.

Mrs. Beatrice Yingling, Kings-ton Chapter No. 411, Mrs. Ruth Cline, Waverly Chapter No. 99 presided at the silver service and Mrs. Edna West, junior past deputy grand matron, Heber Chapter No. 62, Williamsport and Mrs. Margaret Remy, worthy matron, Purity Chapter No. 65, New Holland attended the punch bowls.

Committees for the evening were: Mrs. Mary E. Radcliffe, president, Mrs. Alma Noble, vice president, New Holland; Mrs. Wanda Kitchen, secretary, Adelphi; Mrs. Nellie Hardman, treasurer, Jeffersonville; favors — Mrs. Betty Liston; refreshments — Mrs. Elaine Bowman, Mrs. Gladys Robinson, Mrs. Beverly Curranee, Mrs. Mary Agin, Mrs. Mary E. McDonald and Mrs. Irma Sharpe.

Dr. Hall Addresses CCL

Mrs. William Richards was hostess for the November Child Conservation League meeting.

Mrs. Glenn McCoy called the meeting to order and welcomed guests. She announced that contributions to the Revolving Scholarship Fund have been received from local organizations.

Mrs. Walter Yamarick requested members bring a can goods and a toy or donation to the December meeting for the Christmas food basket. Mrs. Kenneth Hannan distributed the names of those participating in the Goodie Basket Project.

The speaker, Dr. Nason Hall Jr., assistant professor of sociology at Ohio State University, was introduced by Mrs. C. K. Vaughn.

Dr. Hall discussed the three-year program currently in progress in selected Columbus schools. He said this program, which is financed by a grant from the National Institute of Mental Health, endeavors to rehabilitate seventh grade boys from low economic levels.

Research indicates that these boys have a poorly defined definition of work, school and law enforcement. He said they have negative conceptions of their own worth and their father's worth. Also they have very fatalistic attitudes about the outcome of their lives and feel there is little they can do to change their position.

Research has also indicated these boys can identify best with male teachers. Therefore, only male teachers amenable to change and experimentation are recommended by their principals to participate in this program. Their special training covers classroom control of delinquency prone boys, discipline through mutual respect and emphasizes the individual worth. Through this program the schools hope to develop the positive attitudes in these young boys which will consequently lead them to the fulfillment of a productive life.

The next meeting will be the Christmas Silver Tea to be held in the home of Mrs. Richard Moore. Members may make guest reservations with a member of the tea committee by Dec. 2.

Salem WSCS Members Hold Session

The Salem WSCS met recently in the home of Mrs. George Minshall. Mrs. Fairy Alkire used "American Thanksgiving" as her theme for the worship service. Mrs. Ira Barr led the group in singing.

Mrs. Ned Boldoser was in charge of the business meeting. Mrs. Vera Miller reported that she had received the first order of pecans and distributed them to members to sell. Mrs. Marie Boldoser was appointed to collect the money and keep an account of pecans sold.

Birthday dues were paid by Mrs. Marie Boldoser, Mrs. Gerald Patrick, Mrs. Alva Dyer and Miss Edna Rice. Plans were completed for a rummage sale to be held on Saturday at Beckett's, 119 E. Franklin St. The traveling gift was won by Mrs. Donald Adams.

Mrs. Ira Barr led a discussion on the "Crusade for Higher Education".

The WCTU and WSCS will join together for their Christmas meeting to be held Dec. 2 at the Salem Methodist Church. The WCTU will furnish the punch and the WSCS will furnish the cookies. A dollar gift exchange will be held.

Mrs. Ned Boldoser assisted the hostess. A dessert course was served to 22 members and five guests, Mrs. Fred Minshall, Loretta Alcorn, Kim Farmer, Bobby and Patty Minshall.

Princess Ends Tour Of Hollywood

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Britain's Princess Margaret wound up a hectic tourist's holiday in glossy Hollywood and space-age centers today, then abruptly changed pace, looking forward to a strictly private rest in the desert serenity of Tucson, Ariz.

The princess and her husband, the Earl of Snowdon, ended their three-day visit here with a tour of the new Los Angeles Music Center and a courtesy visit at City Hall with Mayor Samuel W. Yorty.

Princess Margaret was still taking medication for laryngitis she contracted during the frenetic pace she has maintained since beginning her U.S. tour in San Francisco last Thursday.

The royal visitors' schedule Tuesday included an early-evening formal reception at the home of British Consul-General Peter G. F. Dalton. Earlier, Princess Margaret had visited a home for aged British subjects in nearby Sierra Madre while her husband set the cornerstone for a British motorcycle sales firm in Duarte, a few miles away.

The Snowdons bade Hollywood goodby Tuesday night at a buffet supper given by Hollywood publicist Rupert Allen and Brig. Gen. Frank McCarthy, a film executive who was World War II aide to Gen. George C. Marshall.

Study Scheduled On Stilton Cheese

NOTTINGHAM, England (AP) — David Middleton, a post-graduate research student at Nottingham University, has a grant from the British Milk Marketing Board to investigate stilton cheese.

His object is to find out just what stilton cheese is. "People know how a stilton cheese is made," Middleton said, "But nobody knows exactly what it is."

The study of stilton won't be received to well by many Britons who are very proud of their cheese which is somewhat like Italy's gorgonzola.

In fact, the Oxford Dictionary describes stilton as a "superior English cheese."

Dear Abby:

By Abigail Van Buren

Pop Was Being Petty

DEAR ABBY: Last evening, around suppertime, while I was in the kitchen helping Mother, the telephone rang. My father answered it and I heard him say, "Yes," then he hung up, bang, just like that! I asked him who it was for, and he said it was a boy asking if Carol was there. (I am Carol.) I was furious and asked my father why he didn't call me to the phone, and he said, "All the boy asked was, 'Is Carol there?'" I answered his question. I said "yes." If he wanted to speak to you, he should have said, "May I please speak to Carol?"

Now, Abby, do you think this was very nice of my father? And what should I do about it? I don't know which boy it was and I feel terrible.

DEAR CAROL: I think your Pop was being peevish and petty. If it's habitual with him, clue your friends on how to ask for you. But I think it will pass. (Perhaps your father had bet against the Dodgers, honey.)

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I have had a bit of an argument. He holds a public office, and when we give a wedding gift, he insists on having his name and official title engraved on the gift. In fact, he is so adamant about this that he will give only gifts of silver for the sole purpose of engraving his name on them. I contend that it would be all right to engrave the recipients' names and, perhaps, the date of the wedding on the gift, but for him to stick HIS name and title on the gift is in very poor taste. Am I right?

OFFICIALS WIFE
DEAR WIFE: If the recipients wish to boast that they have received a gift from a person of importance, they can casually remark to guests, "That platter over there is from Lyndon and Lady Bird, or Hubert and Muriel." One who needs to be immortalized by a "monument" doesn't deserve one.

DEAR ABBY: Everyone should be allowed one good gripe, and here's mine: It's the stupid waitress who will approach one man at the table when there are several couples in the party, and say, "You want all this on one check, don't you?" Then she slaps down one check already made out with everything on it.

I'll bet my socks that a lot of people don't go out in couples any more because some dumb waitress always sticks them with the bill for the entire party. Thank you.

STUCK OFTEN
DEAR STUCK: Waitresses are not mind readers. They don't know whether it's a Dutch treat, or you're someone's Dutch Uncle. It's up to you to clue her in when you order. If she makes up one check and it was not your intention to be the host, Tell her you want separate checks! And if you haven't the nerve, you deserve to be stuck.

Novel Ways To Decorate With Paper

By JOAN O'SULLIVAN

Want to brighten a setting, conceal a poor plastering job, add a novel and original touch to a room setting?

Decorate with wallpaper. It's a wonder - worker.

You can use it on all four walls. Or you can use it on one wall or two.

Try, for example, to open up a small room by covering one wall with a mural paper. The scenic design will seemingly push back the walls and give cramped quarters an airier look.

Use wallpaper to create a mood. In a feminine boudoir, for example, what's prettier than a floral wallpaper?

Use it on the wall behind the bed and then, to carry out the floral design, paper the top of a dressing table or top your windows with wall-papered cornices.

Want to strike a tailored mood on the masculine side? A textured or plaid paper turns the trick.

But plaid's overpowering, so use it on one wall only. Cover the other three with a tweedy paper. Repeat the plaid with a novel touch - apply a band of the paper as a border on window shades and use it on the window cornice, too.

Where else can paper be cleverly applied?

It's great on screens. It makes marvelous cover-up when applied to a headboard with a finish that seems some the worse for wear.

FLORAL DESIGN - Wallpaper can work for you in many ways. It makes a marvelous cover-up for a finish that seems some the worse for wear. Use it to create a mood and as interesting border lines. Above, floral-print vinyl, laminated to wet-strength paper, makes washable wall covering that peels off in one strip.

Vinyl - coated paper can even be used to camouflage a scarred table top. Liquids won't stain vinyl paper.

Also use paper to create interesting border lines - around the ceiling or around a door or window grouping.

Want to call attention to a series of small pictures? Frame the grouping with a border of wallpaper and they'll look great.

Use paper to dress up closets, too. Ordinary cardboard storage boxes take paper beautifully and look glamorous when lined up on shelves.

Wallpaper can work for you in many ways. Use your imagination to find them.

Patricia Gray Becomes Bride of Floyd Hughey

Miss Patricia Anne Gray and A.C. Floyd A. Hughey exchanged wedding vows 2:30 p. m. Oct. 10 in Hedges Chapel Methodist Church. The Rev. William Sherertz performed the double ring ceremony before an altar decorated with candles and white mums.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence W. Gray Sr., Route 1, Ashville. Mr. Hughey is the son of Mrs. Darrrel Conrad, Circleville, and Mr. Thurman Hughey, Tulsa, Okla. Mrs. Joseph Peters was organist.

Given in marriage by her father the bride wore a floor length gown of white bridal satin. White Chantilly lace embellished the scoop neckline and front of the bell skirt which swept into a chapel train. A crown of seed pearls held her veil of illusion and she carried a white Bible topped with two white orchids.

Miss Kathy Gray was her sister's maid of honor. Miss Delores Hughey and Miss Nancy Gray were bridesmaids. They wore identical floor length dresses of moss rose peau de soie featuring empire waistlines accented by velvet bows. Their headpieces were open-crown pill boxes of moss rose with veils of illusion and they carried cascades of white and purple mums.

Penny Gray was the flower girl. She wore a white organza dress with moss rose accessories.

Pfc. Lloyd Hughey served his cousin as best man. Mr. Bill Gray and Mr. James Neal were ushers.

Mrs. Gray chose for her daughter's wedding a blue brocade dress with matching blue and white accessories. Mrs. Conrad wore a blue knit suit with matching blue and white accessories. They both wore corsages of white carnations.

A four tier wedding cake and white mums accented the reception table. Serving as hostesses were Joyce Creameans, Helen Wilson, Marjorie Shy and Margie Mucie. Mrs. William Sherertz was in charge of the guest register.

Mrs. Norman Pontius designed and made the bride's gown and the attendants' dresses.

The couple resides in East Grand Forks, Minn.

Wrong Place For Fishing

PORT ELIZABETH, South Africa (AP) - Night-time anglers have found a spot to fish in Port Elizabeth - the city's Oceanarium.

Colin Taylor, the curator, has found several fish swimming around with hooks and pieces of line hanging from their mouths.

The pool which had found favor with the nocturnal fishermen was the Oceanarium's small tank where specimens of salt water fish are kept.

For some time the curator had been puzzled by the mysterious loss of several prize exhibits. Police have established that people have been seen climbing up to the tank from the roof of an adjoining building, said Taylor.

To keep a knob of fresh ginger, leave it unpeeled and cover it with sherry. Use a glass jar with a screw-top cover and keep the sherried ginger in the refrigerator. Cut off a slice as needed.

Modern cooking directions to the contrary, many good cooks believe in pricking the skin of a duck as it is roasting to help the fat drain off. However, some of these cooks say that only the skin over the back and around the tail needs the pricking.

DEAR ABBY: Everyone should be allowed one good gripe, and here's mine: It's the stupid waitress who will approach one man at the table when there are several couples in the party, and say, "You want all this on one check, don't you?" Then she slaps down one check already made out with everything on it.

I'll bet my socks that a lot of people don't go out in couples any more because some dumb waitress always sticks them with the bill for the entire party. Thank you.

STUCK OFTEN: DEAR STUCK: Waitresses are not mind readers. They don't know whether it's a Dutch treat, or you're someone's Dutch Uncle. It's up to you to clue her in when you order. If she makes up one check and it was not your intention to be the host, Tell her you want separate checks! And if you haven't the nerve, you deserve to be stuck.

Novel Ways To Decorate With Paper

By JOAN O'SULLIVAN

Want to brighten a setting, conceal a poor plastering job, add a novel and original touch to a room setting?

Decorate with wallpaper. It's a wonder - worker.

You can use it on all four walls. Or you can use it on one wall or two.

Try, for example, to open up a small room by covering one wall with a mural paper. The scenic design will seemingly push back the walls and give cramped quarters an airier look.

Use wallpaper to create a mood. In a feminine boudoir, for example, what's prettier than a floral wallpaper?

Use it on the wall behind the bed and then, to carry out the floral design, paper the top of a dressing table or top your windows with wall-papered cornices.

Want to strike a tailored mood on the masculine side? A textured or plaid paper turns the trick.

But plaid's overpowering, so use it on one wall only. Cover the other three with a tweedy paper. Repeat the plaid with a novel touch - apply a band of the paper as a border on window shades and use it on the window cornice, too.

Where else can paper be cleverly applied?

It's great on screens. It makes marvelous cover - up when applied to a headboard with a finish that seems some the worse for wear.

Wrong Place For Fishing

PORT ELIZABETH, South Africa (AP) — Night - time anglers have found a spot to fish in Port Elizabeth — the city's Oceanarium.

Colin Taylor, the curator, has found several fish swimming around with hooks and pieces of line hanging from their mouths.

The pool which had found favor with the nocturnal fishermen was the Oceanarium's small tank where specimens of salt water fish are kept.

For some time the curator had been puzzled by the mysterious loss of several prize exhibits. Police have established that people have been seen climbing up to the tank from the roof of an adjoining building, said Taylor.

To keep a knob of fresh ginger, leave it unpeeled and cover it with sherry. Use a glass jar with a screw-top cover and keep the sherry ginger in the refrigerator. Cut off a slice as needed.

FLORAL DESIGN — Wallpaper can work for you in many ways. It makes a marvelous cover-up for a finish that seems some the worse for wear. Use it to create a mood and as interesting border lines. Above, floral-print vinyl, laminated to wet-strength paper, makes washable wall covering that peels off in one strip.

Vinyl - coated paper can even be used to camouflage a scarred table top. Liquids won't stain vinyl paper.

Also use paper to create interesting border lines — around the ceiling or around a door or window grouping.

Want to call attention to a series of small pictures? Frame the grouping with a border of wallpaper and they'll look great.

Use paper to dress up closets, too. Ordinary cardboard storage boxes take paper beautifully and look glamorous when lined up on shelves.

Wallpaper can work for you in many ways. Use your imagination to find them.

Patricia Gray Becomes Bride of Floyd Hughey

Miss Patricia Anne Gray and A2C Floyd A. Hughey exchanged wedding vows 2:30 p. m. Oct. 10 in Hedges Chapel Methodist Church. The Rev. William Sherertz performed the double ring ceremony before an altar decorated with candles and white mums.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence W. Gray Sr., Route 1, Ashville, Mr. Hughey is the son of Mrs. Darrel Conrad, Circleville, and Mr. Thurman Hughey, Tulsa, Okla. Mrs. Joseph Peters was organist.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a floor length gown of white bridal satin. White Chantilly lace embellished the scoop neckline and front of the bell skirt which swept into a chapel train. A crown of seed pearls held her veil of illusion and she carried a white Bible topped with two white orchids.

Miss Kathy Gray was her sister's maid of honor. Miss Delores Hughey and Miss Nancy Gray were bridesmaids. They wore identical floor length dresses of moss rose peau de soie featuring empire waistlines accented by velvet bows. Their headpieces were open - crown pill boxes of moss rose with veils of illusion and they carried cascades of white and purple mums.

Penny Gray was the flower girl. She wore a white organdy dress with moss rose accessories.

Pfc. Lloyd Hughey served his cousin as best man. Mr. Bill Gray and Mr. James Neal were ushers.

Mrs. Gray chose for her daughter's wedding a blue brocade dress with matching blue and white accessories. Mrs. Conrad wore a blue knit suit with matching blue and white accessories. They both wore corsages of white carnations.

A four tier wedding cake and white mums accented the reception table. Serving as hostesses were Joyce Creameans, Helen Wilson, Marjorie Shy and Margie Mucie. Mrs. William Sherertz was in charge of the guest register.

Mrs. Norman Pontius designed and made the bride's gown and the attendants dresses.

The couple resides in East Grand Forks, Minn.

Single Vote Margin Held By Laborites

LONDON (AP)—Prime Minister Harold Wilson's Labor government entered a new and stormy session of Parliament today with its majority down to a single vote and with revolt threatening in Rhodesia.

But the 49-year-old Labor leader and his ministers were blandly proclaiming confidence they would ride out the tests and shocks of the legislative year ahead and emerge in front of their Conservative challengers.

Death and one election defeat have cut the government's margin over its Conservative and Liberal opponents from five votes to one in the 630-member House of Commons.

Special elections are due shortly to fill two vacancies previously held by Labor men. The Laborites are sure of winning one but face a tough fight in the other district.

Wilson nevertheless has projected among his followers a sense of certainty that they will win out against any acts of God or moves that Edward Heath's Conservatives might make.

One major factor Wilson holds to be in his favor is the fact that the nation faces an emergency from the threat of Rhodesia's white minority to seize independence. British voters rarely change governments in the midst of crisis.

As Wilson sees it, Jo Grimond and the other eight Liberals in Commons have neither the money nor the wish to risk their power-balancing role in another election.

If the Liberals support the government on key issues, Wilson can count on a margin over the Conservatives of up to about 20 votes. And if the Liberals only abstain, Labor still would be comparatively safe from defeat.

Heath intends hitting hard at the administrative record of Wilson and his ministers.

Heath maintains British foreign policy in the past year has been lamentable in execution and in opportunities lost.

He argues Wilson mishandled the Rhodesian crisis.

A WORD ABOUT CAMELS
Q. This may not be a proper question but the subject came up in our science class. How can camels go for such long periods without water? Do they store water in their humps?
A. The camel has no special facilities to store water—in humps or otherwise. (The hump consists of fat tissue.) The animal does have a unique water-conservation system. Abstinence from water for about two weeks in the desert results in marked loss in body weight of the camel, amounting to about 40 per cent of total body water. However, very little of the lost water comes from the blood stream. It is this ability of the camel to retain water in its blood stream that permits survival for extended periods without water. No other animal (man included) has this ability to economize on water.
SYPHILIS AND TRANSFUSION
Q. Can syphilis be transmitted by blood transfusion?
A. Yes. The danger is greatest when blood is transfused directly from one person to another. With stored (bank) blood the danger is small, and with stored plasma it is remote. Special precautions are taken to avoid transfusion of "tainted" blood.
We maintain full supplies of all drugs, including the newest "miracles," to be able to serve your every prescription need with maximum promptness and care.

A WORD ABOUT CAMELS

Q. This may not be a proper question but the subject came up in our science class. How can camels go for such long periods without water? Do they store water in their humps?

A. The camel has no special facilities to store water—in humps or otherwise. (The hump consists of fat tissue.) The animal does have a unique water-conservation system. Abstinence from water for about two weeks in the desert results in marked loss in body weight of the camel, amounting to about 40 per cent of total body water. However, very little of the lost water comes from the blood stream. It is this ability of the camel to retain water in its blood stream that permits survival for extended periods without water. No other animal (man included) has this ability to economize on water.

Q. Can syphilis be transmitted by blood transfusion?

A. Yes. The danger is greatest when blood is transfused directly from one person to another. With stored (bank) blood the danger is small, and with stored plasma it is remote. Special precautions are taken to avoid transfusion of "tainted" blood.

Scotland Yard Gets New Home

LONDON (AP) — Scotland Yard is moving soon, and some how the world-famous police headquarters won't be the same.

Although the name Scotland Yard is being retained, the police are leaving their strange old building, with its distinctive rounded corners, and moving into a 20-story block of glass and concrete in the nearby Victoria section of London.

Under a new telephone dialing system Scotland Yard will lose its famous number Whitehall 1212. The new number will have only digits, something like 451212.

The name Scotland Yard is traced to a legend that an area of land at Whitehall was known as Scotland because buildings there were set aside to accommodate the kings of Scotland when they visited London.

In 1829 a large house, No. 4

Whitehall Place, was taken over by Sir Robert Peel as headquarters for the police force.

The men were soon speaking of their station by the name of the little street—Scotland Yard—which it faced. The name stuck.

Curiously, Scotland Yard almost became a national opera house. In 1875 foundations for such a building were laid alongside the police headquarters, but funds were lacking to complete it.

Sir Richard Pennefather, receiver for the Metropolitan Police, purchased the incomplete building in 1877. It was demolished and Norman Shaw, one of the leading architects of the day, was commissioned to design a police headquarters overlooking the Thames River.

The commissioner of police and his staff moved into their new offices in 1890 along with the Criminal Investigation Department.

The yard had really arrived. Scotland Yard is the headquarters of London's Metropolitan Police but as any Sherlock Holmes fan knows, is best known for its detectives. The CID was set up in 1878 and today about 1,700 plain-clothes officers are engaged solely in crime investigation.

Also housed at Scotland Yard is the London branch of the international criminal police organization—Interpol—which keeps in touch with police forces throughout the world.

Scotland Yard is expected to move into the new building about the middle of next year.

The move has been made necessary by the massive expansion of the Metropolitan Police force.

No decision has been taken on the future of the old Scotland Yard. It may be pulled down.

Not Much Really Happens When Princess Is Mute

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — What happens when Britain's princess meets Hollywood's royalty? Not much, when the party of the first part happens to have laryngitis.

That was the situation this week when the motion picture industry gave its official welcome to Princess Margaret and Lord Snowdon at Universal City. Some of the top names of the film world showed up for the luncheon. But the princess, alas, had lost her voice. It may have been due to a swinging affair at the bistro in Beverly Hills the night before. At any rate, she was virtually mute.

The situation is best illustrated by an encounter with Rock Hudson. Like many of the more notable figures at the luncheon, he had been invited to a reception prior to the luncheon.

Not a voluble chap under any circumstances, Hudson had been made aware that protocol dictated commoners do not speak to the princess until spoken to. After the introduction he waited — and waited. After a 90-second period of silence, he grinned his famous grin and moved on.

It was the same at the luncheon. Universal's Stage 12 had been converted into an English garden, with stately columns and bowers of yellow chrysanthemums against a backdrop of blue. Some of the well-polished names of Hollywood gathered around: Fred Astaire, Gene Kelly, Dana Wynter, Cyd Charisse, Lana Turner, Robert Stack, Jane Wyman, Gene Autry, etc.

At 1 p.m., the royal party entered the stage to the tune of "Pomp and Circumstance" as played by the band from Disneyland.

Princess Margaret, smiling but not speaking, stood at the upraised center table as the American and English anthems were played. Then she sat down, flanked by Maurice Chevalier on the right and James Stewart on the left. The brilliant Frenchman tried to keep the conversation going. Jimmy Stewart was Jimmy Stewart.

"Too bad she had laryngitis," Chevalier said afterward. "We performers know how to deal with it; she doesn't."

Port Said To Be Free

CAIRO (AP) — The Egyptian Cabinet has agreed to make Port Said a free port. It is the northern terminal of the Suez Canal, on the Mediterranean.

New York Distributes Local Sales Tax Fund

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — The State Tax Department says it has distributed $6,852,117 to cities, counties and other governmental units that levy a local sales or use tax.

The state collects the tax for them along with its own 2 percent levy and turns back the local share. The latest payment represents collections for October.

The commissioner of police and his staff moved into their new offices in 1890 along with the Criminal Investigation Department.

The yard had really arrived. Scotland Yard is the headquarters of London's Metropolitan Police but as any Sherlock Holmes fan knows, is best known for its detectives. The CID was set up in 1878 and today about 1,700 plain-clothes officers are engaged solely in crime investigation.

Also housed at Scotland Yard is the London branch of the international criminal police organization—Interpol—which keeps in touch with police forces throughout the world.

Scotland Yard is expected to move into the new building about the middle of next year.

The move has been made necessary by the massive expansion of the Metropolitan Police force.

No decision has been taken on the future of the old Scotland Yard. It may be pulled down.

Not Much Really Happens When Princess Is Mute

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — What happens when Britain's princess meets Hollywood's royalty? Not much, when the party of the first part happens to have laryngitis.

That was the situation this week when the motion picture industry gave its official welcome to Princess Margaret and Lord Snowdon at Universal City. Some of the top names of the film world showed up for the luncheon. But the princess, alas, had lost her voice. It may have been due to a swinging affair at the bistro in Beverly Hills the night before. At any rate, she was virtually mute.

The situation is best illustrated by an encounter with Rock Hudson. Like many of the more notable figures at the luncheon, he had been invited to a reception prior to the luncheon.

Not a voluble chap under any circumstances, Hudson had been made aware that protocol dictated commoners do not speak to the princess until spoken to. After the introduction he waited — and waited. After a 90-second period of silence, he grinned his famous grin and moved on.

It was the same at the luncheon. Universal's Stage 12 had been converted into an English garden, with stately columns and bowers of yellow chrysanthemums against a backdrop of blue. Some of the well-polished names of Hollywood gathered around: Fred Astaire, Gene Kelly, Dana Wynter, Cyd Charisse, Lana Turner, Robert Stack, Jane Wyman, Gene Autry, etc.

At 1 p.m., the royal party entered the stage to the tune of "Pomp and Circumstance" as played by the band from Disneyland.

Princess Margaret, smiling but not speaking, stood at the upraised center table as the American and English anthems were played. Then she sat down, flanked by Maurice Chevalier on the right and James Stewart on the left. The brilliant Frenchman tried to keep the conversation going. Jimmy Stewart was Jimmy Stewart.

"Too bad she had laryngitis," Chevalier said afterward. "We performers know how to deal with it; she doesn't."

New York Distributes Local Sales Tax Fund

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — The State Tax Department says it has distributed $8,852,117 to cities, counties and other governmental units that levy a local sales or use tax.

The state collects the tax for them along with its own 2 per cent levy and turns back the local share. The latest payment represents collections for October.

10 Ohioans Die In Crash of Big Jetliner

CINCINNATI (AP) — Among Ohioans killed in Monday night's crash of an American Airlines plane was Miss Esther F. Healy, the first woman president of the Ohio School Employees Retirement System.

In all, 10 Ohioans, including two married couples, were among the 58 persons killed in the worst plane crash in Greater Cincinnati history.

Miss Healy, 47, Cincinnati, was employed 24 years by the school board here. She was returning from New York where she had been to discuss school retirement plans.

A Cincinnati couple, Mr. and Mrs. William B. Morris, were returning home from a European tour. Morris, 34, was laboratory manager at Interchemical Corp. Printing Ink Division. The Morrises leave two children.

Another local couple who died was Mr. and Mrs. Elmer R. McAtee. They had been in New York City visiting a daughter, McAtee, who was 57 Monday, had worked for the Cincinnati Gas & Electric Co. since 1937.

Roy E. Dickerson, 79, retired executive secretary of the Cincinnati Social Health Society, also died. He had headed the society since 1941.

A lawyer, Dickerson went to New York for a board meeting of the American Social Health Association and to visit his son, Roy H., in Greenwich, Conn.

The other Ohioans, also from Cincinnati, were L. M. Genung, Edward J. Fasold, John J. Waferling and Mrs. Edmund (Peggy) Lee.

Genung, 49, was a contract engineer for the Turner Construction Co. here. He was in New York to visit the home office about plans for urban renewal development in downtown Cincinnati.

Fasold, 50, was secretary-assistant treasurer of the local plant of Philip Carey Co. He had been visiting Carey's plant at Perth Amboy, N. J.

An architect, Waferling, 54, was project manager for A. M. Kinney Associates. He was involved with his firm in a study to use the Cincinnati Union Terminal as a museum.

Mrs. Lee, 40, was in the East visiting relatives, and also to defend a bridge tournament title at Springfield, Mass. The Lees moved to Cincinnati only seven months ago from Wilberham, Mass.

A former Cincinnati killed was Joseph D. Nelson Jr., former president of Stockton West Burkhardt, an advertising firm here. Nelson was a senior vice president of the New York ad firm of Dancer-Fitzgerald-Sample, Inc., and was coming here on business with the Procter & Gamble Co.

WOODEN NICKEL SALE — Photographer Ray Barth puts on a sinister look as he holds up a "$5" wooden nickel in Monroe, Wis., one of 20,000 issued by the Monroe First National Bank 18 months ago to ease the coin shortage. The Treasury Department has started seizing them, calling them counterfeit, and a local tavern owner is selling them at $5 each.

2 Ex-Cons To Face 7 Murder Raps

CLEVELAND (AP) — Indictments containing seven first-degree murder counts have been returned against two Hollywood, Calif., ex-convicts accused of a robbery and kidnapping spree that ended in the death of a suburban Valley View woman.

Martin U. Still, 28, was indicted on four counts Tuesday by the Cuyahoga County Grand Jury. He is accused of the Oct. 17 shooting of Mrs. Florence Kosciwicz, 46.

Vincent J. Podojil, also 28 and a former Cleveland, was indicted on three counts.

The two are accused of killing Mrs. Kosciwicz during a kidnapping and robbery. Under Ohio law, a participant in a robbery which results in death can be charged with first-degree murder.

They were arrested shortly after the shooting and are being held in Cuyahoga County Jail.

The pair is charged with the woman's death after abducting her and her companion, Harold E. Scott, 38, of Bath.

The couple escaped when the car was parked along the Ohio Canal. Scott said he and Mrs. Kosciwicz jumped into the canal and started swimming while Still fired at them from the bank. Two of the 12 bullets fired struck Mrs. Kosciwicz while she struggled in the water. Scott was not hit.

Rhodes Plans To Extend Stay Abroad

BERLIN (AP)—Ohio's Gov. James A. Rhodes, a visit to East Berlin under his belt and a meeting with West Berlin Mayor Willy Brandt slated today, says he just believes he'll stay the whole trip with the buckeye traveling trade mission.

The governor had planned to return to Columbus next Tuesday. But by transatlantic telephone Tuesday, he said the success of the tour had changed his mind and he probably would stay through the Nov. 22 wrap-up.

businessmen and state Development Department officials for the East Berlin look-see Tuesday.

The employment-minded governor questioned the young woman guide provided by the East German government about the country's economy. She told him East Germany had no unemployment, no strikes and a prosperous operation with state-

BOULDER, Colo. (AP)—Ulla Koehue, 16-year-old exchange student from Bad Godesburg, Germany, telling of her impressions of American high school life, was impressed by the constant screaming on a bus going to a game.

"I turned to the girl next to me," she said, "and I asked, 'Why are you screaming?' The girl replied, 'I don't know,' and went back to screaming."

"That is the only day I felt left out and homesick. In Germany we scream separate. Now I scream together like the rest of the students and I like it."

WASHINGTON (AP)—Maybe the electric power blackout in the Northeast Tuesday night was a good thing for the nation as a whole. It may compel new thinking on distributing electricity in case more critical times come.

But it was gruesome for a while, wondering what had happened. There probably wasn't a person who didn't wonder: Was it just an accident? Or was it sabotage by enemies, screwballs, or misguided citizens?

Yet, it wasn't as gruesome as wondering what would happen, under present arrangements for distributing electric power, if the real thing, a nuclear attack, had struck the whole United States.

Joseph C. Swidler, chairman of the Federal Power Commission, said the facts that have come in so far "aren't really adequate for an appraisal of causes, much less cures."

"It's apparent that we'll need a great deal of study and industry thinking — and perhaps some fairly important technological renovations."

He left unclear what he meant but it now seems incredible, thanks to what happened Tuesday night, that a nation which some day could suffer a nuclear attack would have a power system, or systems, so centralized that one disruption could throw a whole group of states into darkness.

Swidler said "we can't tolerate a systemwide interruption under the highly developed power conditions we have today." So perhaps the result will be a much more decentralized power system.

Because there was no fear of worse to come — like a nuclear attack — there was no panic. But there would be panic if such an attack came and, with the central power plants destroyed, the whole nation was left in darkness.

In that situation, remembering the fantastic traffic jams in New York City alone Tuesday night in the darkness, even the movement of troops might be impossible and communications from the government to the people, telling them what to do and what to expect.

In case of attack, and even with a broad power failure, the United States would probably be able to retaliate with its own nuclear weapons from American bases which, the Pentagon says, have auxiliary power of their own.

The Defense Department said military communications in the blacked out area Tuesday night were not interrupted and that all defense communications centers have their own auxiliary power.

But if an attack came, and the rest of the nation was blacked out as the Northeast was Tuesday night, it seems pretty plain the civilian population, if not the defense structure, would be in chaos.

Thus it is to the interest of the nation to act now to prevent a repetition of Tuesday night.

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Preliminary engineering is under way on a new 37-mile stretch of road to become a part of the projected Appalachian Way in Southeastern Ohio, a state official said Tuesday.

R. A. Newquist, deputy director of Appalachia for Ohio, said construction on the $39 million dollar project is expected to get under way next June.

He described it as one of the "quick start" projects approved

Turnip Seed Dispute Is Ended by Mistrial

ROME, Ga. (AP)—Were they or weren't they turnip seeds? W. M. Cargle of Rome said they weren't in testimony in his $836 suit against a seed store.

Cargle said he purchased what he thought was a pound of purple top turnip seed. He said when he pulled the plants they weren't turnips. Cargle asked for $418 in damages, plus $10 for fertilizer, $1 for seed, $2 for insecticide, $225 for labor, $50 for use of his tractor, $90 for rent on the land and $40 for depreciation on his mule. The jurors couldn't decide what kind of seeds they were and the judge declared a mistrial.

Fess To Be Barred From Seeking Office

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Secretary of State Ted W. Brown says that former State Sen. Lowell Fess faces being barred from seeking public office again.

Brown said Tuesday such action is possible under Ohio law because Fess, 70, failed to meet last Friday's deadline for filing records of campaign contributions and expenditures in the 7th Congressional District primary. Fess said his failure to file was "inadvertent" and that he now has no intentions of seeking public office again.

WASHINGTON (AP)—Maybe the electric power blackout in the Northeast Tuesday night was a good thing for the nation as a whole. It may compel new thinking on distributing electricity in case more critical times come.

But it was gruesome for a while, wondering what had happened. There probably wasn't a person who didn't wonder: Was it just an accident? Or was it sabotage by enemies, screwballs, or misguided citizens?

Yet, it wasn't as gruesome as wondering what would happen, under present arrangements for distributing electric power, if the real thing, a nuclear attack, had struck the whole United States.

Joseph C. Swidler, chairman of the Federal Power Commission, said the facts that have come in so far "aren't really adequate for an appraisal of causes, much less cures."

"It's apparent that we'll need a great deal of study and industry thinking — and perhaps some fairly important technological renovations."

He left unclear what he meant but it now seems incredible, thanks to what happened Tuesday night, that a nation which some day could suffer a nuclear attack would have a power system, or systems, so centralized that one disruption could throw a whole group of states into darkness.

Swidler said "we can't tolerate a systemwide interruption under the highly developed power conditions we have today." So perhaps the result will be a much more decentralized power system.

Because there was no fear of worse to come — like a nuclear attack — there was no panic. But there would be panic if such an attack came and, with the central power plants destroyed, the whole nation was left in darkness.

In that situation, remembering the fantastic traffic jams in New York City alone Tuesday night in the darkness, even the movement of troops might be impossible and communications from the government to the people, telling them what to do and what to expect.

In case of attack, and even

Visit by Pope To Poland Is Seen Possible

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — The possibility is still alive that Pope Paul VI will visit Poland next spring.

Both the Vatican and the Polish government have denied Roman press reports of arrangements for the Pope to come to the May 3, 1966, celebration of 1,000 years of Christianity in Poland.

The feeling here is that the denials were prompted by premature publicity for a project that could take shape in the coming winter.

Some Italian reporters who accompanied President Giuseppe Saragat to Poland last month wrote about a papal visit as if it were already decided.

Prof. Aleksander Skarzyski, director of the Polish government's Office of Religious Affairs, told The Associated Press there was no truth to their stories. But he did not rule out the possibility of a journey here by the Pope.

Numerous matters would have to be settled first, the director said.

Many Polish Communists as well as Catholics are interested in having the pontiff come here because of the prestige this would mean for their country.

Communist regime officials are also pondering possible disadvantages. There would be the danger that the visit might disrupt public order, something dreaded by any regime in power.

Polish Catholics are so fervently religious that more than 100,000 will spend days walking to reach appearances of Stefan Cardinal Wyszyński, the Roman Catholic primate of Poland. The Pope could draw millions. Handling such a crowd would require the kind of church-state cooperation that does not now exist. Despite this, one Warsaw diplomat has predicted to his government that there is a 60-40 chance that the Pope will come here.

Some Polish Catholics feel a papal journey here would be the logical way to continue the approach to the East started by the late Pope John XXIII. This policy has brought formal church-state agreements with Communist authorities in Czechoslovakia and Hungary.

But some critics feel a personal appearance by Pope Paul would dignify the Warsaw Communist regime.

There are also political problems involving the post-World War II Polish-German boundary — problems which either side could use to stop a papal visit here. But they could also be brushed aside if both the Pope and the Polish government become convinced that the trip should be made.

The Vatican has avoided a formal statement recognizing the postwar transfer of former German territory to Poland, but it has named Polish bishops to rule Church affairs in the disputed lands.

Ohio Church Council Eyes Wider Appeal

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — A constitutional proposal aimed at improving denomination representation and participation will come before the Ohio Council of Churches' 46th annual assembly to open in Cincinnati Nov. 15.

The council said Tuesday that such a proposal in other states has opened the door for Lutheran, Orthodox and Roman Catholic communions to unite with the council of churches.

EDUCATION WEEK OBSERVED — American Education Week is now being observed in schools across the country. South Court St. School is planning an all day observance Thursday with visitation from 8:30 a. m. to 3 p. m. and a special PTA meeting in the evening. A window display, at Economy Loan Co. on W. Main St., was made by a committee of S. Court St. School teachers headed by Mrs. Mildred Dowden (left). Assisting her with the window display are Miss Rosaline Rheinscheld (background) and Edwin Leatherwood. Also on the committee are Mrs. Louise Brown, Mrs. Sue Steele and Mrs. Faye Sowers. A Veterans' Day observance will be incorporated into the evening PTA meeting, according to J. L. Chilcote, principal.

New Book Claims Jesus 'Plotted' His Crucifixion

LONDON (AP) — A controversial new book claiming that Jesus planned his own crucifixion is disturbing many churchmen of all denominations in Britain.

The book—titled "The Passover Plot"—suggests that Jesus believing himself to be the promised Messiah, schemed throughout his life to manipulate people so that the Old Testament prophecies would be fulfilled.

The writer is Dr. Hugh J. Schonfield, a Jewish scholar living in London, well-known for his modern translation of the New Testament and some 30 commentaries on Biblical history.

Published here by Hutchinson, the book will appear in the United States when negotiations over the rights are concluded.

Schonfield, 64, says he subscribes to no religious creed himself though he believes in God as pure spirit. He insists he has written his book not to create a sensation but in an honest search for truth. His claims, he says, are the result of more than 40 years of objective research.

Writing of the events of Passion Week, Schonfield says:

"A conspiracy had to be organized of which the victim himself was the principal instigator. It was a nightmarish conception and undertaking, the outcome of the frightening logic of a sick mind or a genius. And it worked out."

According to Schonfield, Jesus knew the church had to be founded on fulfillment of prophecies, so he planned that fulfillment in the minutest detail.

He timed the plan for his apparent death so that he would be crucified on Friday, knowing that because of the Jewish Sabbath he would be taken down from the cross within a few hours.

Schonfield claims: — The vinegar passed to Jesus on a sponge was really a drug passed by an accomplice enabling him to simulate death, so his legs would not be broken like those of the two thieves crucified with him. The blood that flowed from his side showed he was still living, Schonfield claims.

— The linens and spices used to wrap his body acted as dressings for his injuries. He probably briefly recovered consciousness after being laid in the tomb, but succumbed from the soldier's lance wound in his side. His body was secretly taken away and buried, leaving the mystery of the empty tomb.

Throughout, Schonfield seems anxious to avoid appearing an anti-Christian propagandist. He insists nothing can be proved either way. And, in arguing that Jesus did not die on the cross and that his resurrection was part of a prearranged plan, he insists there was no deliberate untruth in the witness of Christ's followers.

Neither was there any fraud on the part of Jesus himself, Schonfield says.

"He had schemed in faith for his physical recovery, and what he expected was frustrated by circumstances beyond his control," Schonfield writes.

Church leaders in Britain have thus far withheld public comment on the book. Two Church of England priests who read it said they took it seriously although they disapproved.

Scores of earnest churchgoers wrote to the newspapers, mostly in condemnation of the book.

A time to remember the responsibilities each of us has as a citizen!

We present here the following as drafted by The American Bar Association:

CANONS OF AMERICAN CITIZENSHIP

Every American Citizen Should Recognize the Duty to:

1. Uphold the laws of the United States, and the states and communities.
2. Defend our country from invasion and our government from overthrow by force, violence or subversion.
3. Encourage respect for law and order and insist upon solutions of differences and grievances by processes of law and never by resort to violence or other unlawful means.
4. Support those charted with the enforcement and administration of our laws; voluntarily act as a witness and serve as a juror.
5. Harbor no prejudice against anyone because of race, religion or national origin.
6. Maintain pride in family, heritage and church as well as in community, state and nation.
7. Keep informed on issues and candidates, and vote in every election.
8. Respect the rights and opinions of others.
9. Participate in religious, charitable, civic, educational or other activities to promote the welfare of the community.
10. Acknowledge that 'responsibilities' are as important as 'rights' in the preservation of freedom and justice.

Views on Television — Radio

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
AP Television-Radio Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — This column, written in a chilly living room in front of a hearth fire and by the light of a single flickering candle, is essentially a love note to old-fashioned radio and the transistor receiving set.

Within moments after the lights of most of the Northeast dimmed and flickered out in a gigantic power failure Tuesday night, local and network radio stations started mobilizing. Soon afterward, we knew it was not just a local failure, but before fear or panic could take over, calm radio voices already were reassuring us and offering help.

We were told it was a mechanical breakdown, not sabotage or even worse.

We were given instructions for emergencies. We were told of precautions, the mobilizing of police and the National Guard. We were given telephone numbers to call if we needed the police or an ambulance.

Obviously, it wasn't easy for them to be on the air. Some of the broadcasts came from station transmitters across the Hudson River where there was still power.

At any rate, radio performed for us a vital service. And no home should be without a working battery radio as well as a good supply of candles and matches.

Television transmission, of course, was knocked out in the affected area. CBS postponed its planned "National Citizenship Test" special to Nov. 23, replacing it with a special program on the electricity failure, which could not be seen by millions of victims.

Before the blackout descended, ABC television announced that two of its programs which had shown marked weakness in their Nielsen ratings would be canceled in January and replaced by two more spy series.

Canceled are "O. K. Crackerby," a new comedy series on Thursday nights, and Saturday night's "King Family," which has not done well since it was shrunk to a half-hour program.

The network, at the same time, will reshuffle some of its programs, putting the comedy "Gidget" in the Thursday "Crackerby" period and moving the vintage "Donna Reed Show" into the "King Family" spot.

Then a spy drama, "Blue Light," starring Robert Goulet in a nonsinging part, will go into the Wednesday half hour vacated by "Gidget."

A comedy spy series, "The Double Life of Henry Phyfe," starring Red Buttons, will be a Thursday evening entry. All the shifting around will take place during the second week of January.

The Pope could draw millions. Handling such a crowd would require the kind of church-state cooperation that does not now exist. Despite this, one Warsaw diplomat has predicted to his government that there is a 60-40 chance that the Pope will come here.

Some Polish Catholics feel a papal journey here would be the logical way to continue the approach to the East started by the late Pope John XXIII. This policy has brought formal church-state agreements with Communist authorities in Czechoslovakia and Hungary.

But some critics feel a personal appearance by Pope Paul would dignify the Warsaw Communist regime.

There are also political problems involving the post-World War II Polish-German boundary — problems which either side could use to stop a papal visit here. But they could also be brushed aside if both the Pope and the Polish government become convinced that the trip should be made.

The Vatican has avoided a formal statement recognizing the postwar transfer of former German territory to Poland, but it has named Polish bishops to rule Church affairs in the disputed lands.

Ohio Church Council Eyes Wider Appeal

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — A constitutional proposal aimed at improving denomination representation and participation will come before the Ohio Council of Churches' 46th annual assembly to open in Cincinnati Nov. 15.

The council said Tuesday that such a proposal in other states has opened the door for Lutheran, Orthodox and Roman Catholic communions to unite with the council of churches.

EDUCATION WEEK OBSERVED — American Education Week is now being observed in schools across the country. South Court St. School is planning an all day observance Thursday with visitation from 8:30 a. m. to 3 p. m. and a special PTA meeting in the evening. A window display, at Economy Loan Co. on W. Main St., was made by a committee of S. Court St. School teachers headed by Mrs. Mildred Dowden (left). Assisting her with the window display are Miss Rosaline Rheinscheld (background) and Edwin Leatherwood. Also on the committee are Mrs. Louise Brown, Mrs. Sue Steele and Mrs. Faye Sowers. A Veterans' Day observance will be incorporated into the evening PTA meeting, according to J. L. Chilcote, principal.

New Book Claims Jesus 'Plotted' His Crucifixion

LONDON (AP) — A controversial new book claiming that Jesus planned his own crucifixion is disturbing many churchmen of all denominations in Britain.

The book—titled "The Passover Plot"—suggests that Jesus believing himself to be the promised Messiah, schemed throughout his life to manipulate people so that the Old Testament prophecies would be fulfilled.

The writer is Dr. Hugh J. Schonfield, a Jewish scholar living in London, well-known for his modern translation of the New Testament and some 30 commentaries on Biblical history.

Published here by Hutchinson, the book will appear in the United States when negotiations over the rights are concluded.

Schonfield, 64, says he subscribes to no religious creed himself though he believes in God as pure spirit. He insists he has written his book not to create a sensation but in an honest search for truth. His claims, he says, are the result of more than 40 years of objective research.

Writing of the events of Passion Week, Schonfield says:

"A conspiracy had to be organized of which the victim himself was the principal instigator. It was a nightmarish conception and undertaking, the outcome of the frightening logic of a sick mind or a genius. And it worked out."

According to Schonfield, Jesus knew the church had to be founded on fulfillment of prophecies, so he planned that fulfillment in the minutest detail.

He timed the plan for his apparent death so that he would be crucified on Friday, knowing that because of the Jewish Sabbath he would be taken down from the cross within a few hours.

Schonfield claims: — The vinegar passed to Jesus on a sponge was really a drug passed by an accomplice enabling him to simulate death, so his legs would not be broken like those of the two thieves crucified with him. The blood that flowed from his side showed he was still living, Schonfield claims.

— The linens and spices used to wrap his body acted as dressings for his injuries. He probably briefly recovered consciousness after being laid in the tomb, but succumbed from the soldier's lance wound in his side. His body was secretly taken away and buried, leaving the mystery of the empty tomb.

Throughout, Schonfield seems anxious to avoid appearing an anti-Christian propagandist. He insists nothing can be proved either way. And, in arguing that Jesus did not die on the cross and that his resurrection was part of a prearranged plan, he insists there was no deliberate untruth in the witness of Christ's followers.

Neither was there any fraud on the part of Jesus himself, Schonfield says.

"He had schemed in faith for his physical recovery, and what he expected was frustrated by circumstances beyond his control," Schonfield writes. Church leaders in Britain have thus far withheld public comment on the book. Two Church of England priests who read it said they took it seriously although they disapproved.

Scores of earnest churchgoers wrote to the newspapers, mostly in condemnation of the book.

A time to remember the responsibilities each of us has as a citizen!

We present here the following as drafted by The American Bar Association:

CANONS OF AMERICAN CITIZENSHIP

Every American Citizen Should Recognize the Duty to:

1. Uphold the laws of the United States, and the states and communities.
2. Defend our country from invasion and our government from overthrow by force, violence or subversion.
3. Encourage respect for law and order and insist upon solutions of differences and grievances by processes of law and never by resort to violence or other unlawful means.
4. Support those charted with the enforcement and administration of our laws; voluntarily act as a witness and serve as a juror.
5. Harbor no prejudice against anyone because of race, religion or national origin.
6. Maintain pride in family, heritage and church as well as in community, state and nation.
7. Keep informed on issues and candidates, and vote in every election.
8. Respect the rights and opinions of others.
9. Participate in religious, charitable, civic, educational or other activities to promote the welfare of the community.
10. Acknowledge that 'responsibilities' are as important as 'rights' in the preservation of freedom and justice.

Views on Television — Radio

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
AP Television-Radio Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — This column, written in a chilly living room in front of a hearth fire and by the light of a single flickering candle, is essentially a love note to old-fashioned radio and the transistor receiving set.

Within moments after the lights of most of the Northeast dimmed and flickered out in a gigantic power failure Tuesday night, local and network radio stations started mobilizing. Soon afterward, we knew it was not just a local failure, but before fear or panic could take over, calm radio voices already were reassuring us and offering help.

We were told it was a mechanical breakdown, not sabotage or even worse.

We were given instructions for emergencies. We were told of precautions, the mobilizing of police and the National Guard. We were given telephone numbers to call if we needed the police or an ambulance.

Obviously, it wasn't easy for them to be on the air. Some of the broadcasts came from station transmitters across the Hudson River where there was still power.

At any rate, radio performed for us a vital service. And no home should be without a working battery radio as well as a good supply of candles and matches.

Television transmission, of course, was knocked out in the affected area. CBS postponed its planned "National Citizenship Test" special to Nov. 23, replacing it with a special program on the electricity failure, which could not be seen by millions of victims.

Before the blackout descended, ABC television announced that two of its programs which had shown marked weakness in their Nielsen ratings would be canceled in January and replaced by two more spy series.

Canceled are "O. K. Crackerby," a new comedy series on Thursday nights, and Saturday night's "King Family," which has not done well since it was shrunk to a half-hour program.

The network, at the same time, will reshuffle some of its programs, putting the comedy "Gidget" in the Thursday "Crackerby" period and moving the vintage "Donna Reed Show" into the "King Family" spot.

Then a spy drama, "Blue Light," starring Robert Goulet in a nonsinging part, will go into the Wednesday half hour vacated by "Gidget."

A comedy spy series, "The Double Life of Henry Phylfe," starring Red Buttons, will be a Thursday evening entry. All the shifting around will take place during the second week of January.

Laurelville Wins V-H League Tilt

Laurelville High School's basketball Wildcats established itself as a threat in the Vinton-Hocking and Scioto Valley Leagues last night as they kicked off the 1965-66 cage season with a 110-46 decision over visiting Union Furnace.

Dale Wilson's rugged and scrappy team s'owed the visitors a tight zone defense they could not crack, and a scrambling, fast-breaking offense that scored at a rate of nearly 3 1/2 points per minute.

The Wildcats jumped off to a 21-10 lead at the end of the first quarter, stretched it to 54-26 at the half and were on top 83-35 as the final period got under way.

From the field, Laurelville connected on 43 per cent of its attempts. They canned 71 per cent from the foul line.

LITTLE Steve Hettinger, junior letterman who plays guard for the Wildcats, sparked the victory with a 29-point effort.

Westfall Ends Season at The Plains

Rotating Trophy To Add to Natural Rivalry that Exists

Westfall High School's fast improving football team closes out its season Friday in what is expected to be a hotly contested battle at Mt. Sterling with The Plains.

The two school districts are adjacent, although The Plains is in Madison County and competes in the Darby Valley League.

Because of the proximity of the two schools and the natural rivalry that exists, a rotating trophy has been acquired. It will go to the winner of the game each year.

Westfall Coach Joe Duncan said should any team win three years in a row, that school will retain possession of the trophy.

DUNCAN, never having had an opportunity to scout The Plains, knows little about the team.

They are small and fast, play a 5-4 defense, and a belly offense, according to reports Duncan has received.

Westfall, although Duncan is a little worried his charges might have a mental letdown after losing the SVC title to Unioto, is in good physical shape.

Pickaway County's other two schools, Teays Valley and Logan Elm, both ended their football seasons last week.

Colt-Viking Test To Pit Top Powers

NEW YORK (AP) — The Baltimore-Minnesota test Sunday should provide an answer to the question of what happens when the top running game in the National Football League bumps up against the toughest rushing defense. Minnesota's powerful attack, led by Tommy Mason and Bill Brown, rates No. 1 among the league's rushers in the latest batch of team statistics. Baltimore's powerful defensive line and linebacking corps lead in rushing defense.

The Vikings' versatile offense, operated by Fran Tarkenton, put Minnesota in the No. 3 spot in total offense behind San Francisco and Philadelphia.

The 49ers moved for 411 yards last week at Dallas in a losing effort, despite the absence of injured quarterback John Brodie. San Francisco's total of 3,195 yards is tops for offense, and the 49ers also lead in passing attack with 2,093 yards yet have only a 3-5 record. Minnesota's league-leading ground game has piled up 1,410 yards.

Detroit's tough defensive team that threw Bart Starr 11 times for losses of 109 yards last Sunday, leads the league in total defense with a yield of 1,999 yards. The Lions are second in rushing defense with 743 against Baltimore's leading figure of 653 yards.

Hettinger canned 14 field goals and one free throw for the night.

This point production came in spite of the fact he sat out almost the entire third quarter.

Lending able support to Hettinger's effort were Rick Unger, a senior forward, with 21 points on eight field goals and five charity tosses. Terry Thompson, a guard, tossed in eight field goals and added three points in the foul line.

Dwight Woodward, 6-3 senior center, scored four field goals and six foul shots for a total of 14. Keith Thomas tallied 10 points on three field goals and four charity tosses.

Wilson dressed nine players for the varsity game. And all nine broke into the scoring column.

FOR THE losers, Malone tallied 13 markers on four shots from the field and five from the foul line.

Laurelville effectively controlled the boards, pulling down 43 rebounds.

The junior varsity team made it a perfect night for Laurelville fans, winning by a 42-32 count.

The game was a Vinton-Hocking League contest. Other members of the new league are Allensville, Hamden, Zaleski and Wilton.

Union Furnace and Laurelville are the only two high schools outside of Logan in Hocking County.

The Wildcats play their second league game of the season Saturday when they travel to Allensville.

Irish Now Ranked As Highest Scoring

NEW YORK (AP)—The Fighting Irish of Notre Dame have established themselves as a team that gets the most done with the least effort.

Latest statistics of the National Collegiate Athletic Bureau show today that the Irish are the highest-scoring major college football team in the country—250 points for a 35.7 average—yet don't rank among the first 10 in total offense.

The Irish jumped from sixth to first in the scoring column by crushing Pittsburgh last Saturday 69-13. It was the highest number of points for a Notre Dame team in 33 years and the second highest by any team in the last six years.

Indians Schedule More Twilights

CLEVELAND (AP) — Game times for Cleveland Indians weekend baseball games are being moved up and more twilight single games have been scheduled. The Tribe made the announcement Tuesday while announcing the 1966 75 - date home schedule.

The Tribe will play more twilight single games with starting times at 6 p.m. because of favorable box office draw. No twilight doubleheaders are scheduled because of problems in rescheduling rained out games, the Indians announced.

OU Patching Up Team After Eight Grid Defeats

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — "We'll just have to patch things up and keep going," said Coach Bill Hess dejectedly.

The Ohio University football pilot had just seen his Bobcats lose their eighth straight, a 17-6 decision to Western Michigan. And the Bobcats, plagued by injuries all season, lost another two players in the tiff with the Broncos.

Bowling Green is the opposition this week and the Falcons, who need a victory to share the Mid-American Conference championship with Miami, will know they've been in a ball game.

Wilt, Greer Collect 71 For 76ers

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Philadelphia's 76ers believe when you want the job done ask a tall basketball player to do it — better, yet, ask a tall one and a shorter sidekick.

Wilt Chamberlain, who is 7-foot-2, and Hal Greer, a foot shorter, linked scoring efforts and led the 76ers to a 118-110 victory Tuesday over the Los Angeles Lakers in the National Basketball Association. Chamberlain dunked 39 and Greer 32.

The loss dropped the Lakers a game and a half behind San Francisco in the Western Division.

San Francisco's Nate Thurmond, who took over at center when the Stilt was traded to Philadelphia last year, grabbed 42 rebounds off the backboards to help the Warriors retain their first-place position. The Warriors downed the Detroit Pistons 107-102.

New York had to call off a scheduled game with St. Louis because of the electrical blackout in the East. Boston's Celtics won their fourth straight game, this one 130-116 over the Baltimore Bullets in Providence, R.I.

past years have always been thrillers, no matter what the records of the teams involved.

"Bowling Green is very powerful. It doesn't have the overall speed of a year ago but its big runners chew you up," Hess observed.

Miami, 5-1, clinched a piece of the championship its first since 1958, with a 20-16 victory last week over stubborn Toledo. Bruce Matthe's 30-yard TD run with 2:19 remaining settled the contest and made Miami's season a success.

The Falcons, 4-1, stayed on the Redskins' heels by overcoming Marshall, 20-6. If BG wins Saturday, it will mark the first time two schools have ever shared the MAC title.

Outside the league last weekend, slumping Kent State played well but bowed to Penn State, 21-6.

This week, Marshall, 1 - 3, visits Kent, 2-2-1, and the Golden Flashes could tie Western Michigan for third with a victory.

The Broncos, who show a seasonal record of 5-2-1, their best since 1948, entertain Montana. Miami, 5-3 over-all, plays at Dayton, 1-6-1 while Toledo, 4-4, catches Xavier, 7-1.

Dallas Rookie Is Top NFL Player

NEW YORK (AP) — Bob Hayes is one former Olympic sprinter who is making good in a big way in pro football. The flashy Dallas rookie from Florida A&M has been voted The Associated Press' Offensive Player of The Week in the National Football League for his exciting work against San Francisco.

Hayes handled the ball on only nine plays Sunday but he caught four passes for 108 yards. The catches included a 24-yard touchdown pass from Don Meredith in the second period and a 34-yard scoring pass from Meredith in the final period that won the game.

San Diego has won four Western Division titles in the past five seasons.

Bowling Green leads Ohio in a series that dates back to 1945, 9-7-1.

Safetyman Joe Souliere of Bowling Green became the first defensive performer to win back-of-the-week laurels, for his effort against Marshall last Saturday.

Meantime, linebacker Jim Bright gave league-leading Miami representation for the fourth straight week. The Miami defensive captain played against tough Toledo despite an injured left knee.

Bright, a senior from Sandusky, made 10 tackles and had a hand in six more. In the second period with Miami protecting a 7-0 lead, Bright came up with three big tackles to stifle a Toledo threat.

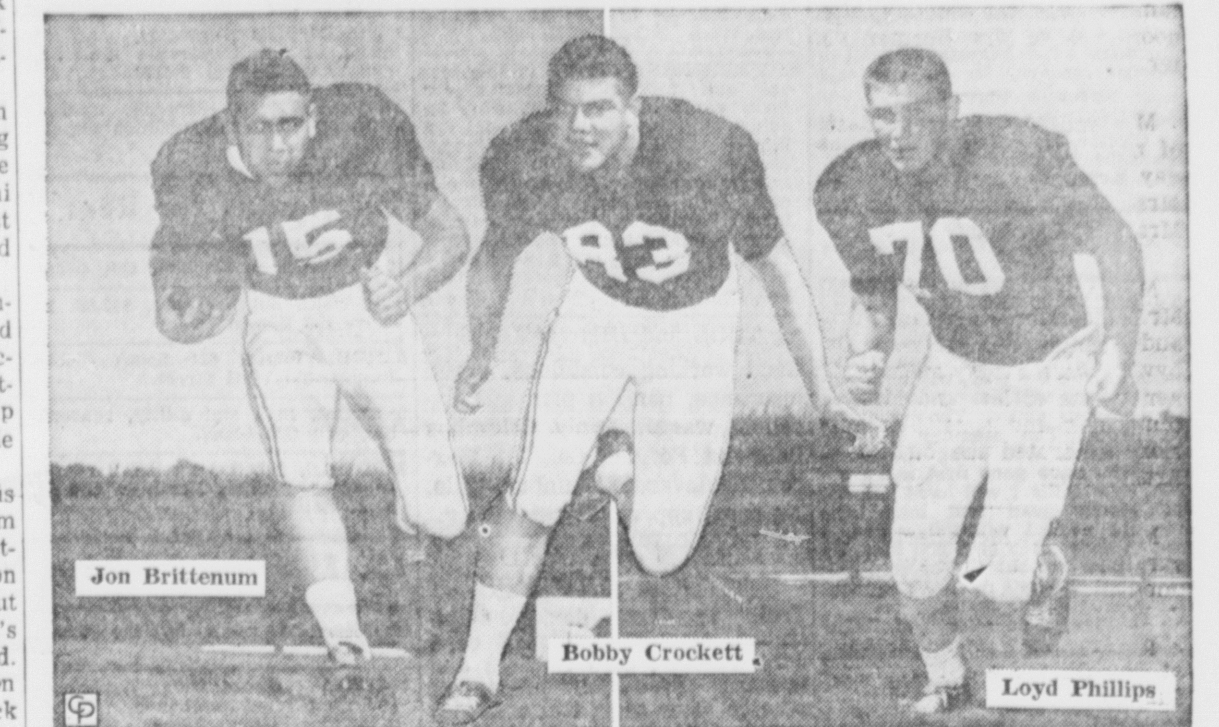

Souliere was out front of his defensive counterparts from Marshall all afternoon at Huntington. He spurred 65 yards on a dazzling punt return that put the game beyond Marshall's reach early in the final period. In all, he piled up 125 yards on five punt returns and ran back a pair of kickoffs for another 52 yards. He also set up a field goal with an interception and made four solo tackles while assisting on five others.

Other backfield nominations included Sam Bogan of Ohio, Joe Kozar of Miami, Ray Henderson of Marshall, Fred Gissendanner of Kent State, Marty

Barski of Western Michigan and John Schneider of Toledo. In the line, the candidates were Bill Simpson of Marshall and Al Mc-

Burch of Toledo, Nelson Jackson of Western Michigan, Ken Irwin of Kent State, Henry Quigg of Bowling Green.

HOGGING THE GRID SPOTLIGHT—The University of Arkansas Razorbacks, winner of 19 straight at this stage, continue on to another undefeated season and a Bowl bid. The Hogs are averaging 32 points a game and are led by quarterback Jon Brittenum, end Bobby Crockett and tackle Loyd Phillips. Big test will come Nov. 20, with Texas Tech.

In Memoriam

To my wife who passed away
Nov. 9th, 1959. You have gone first and I remain, for battles to be fought. Each thing you have touched along the way, will be a hallowed spot. I will hear your voice I will see your smile. Tho kindly I may grope. The memory of your helping hand, Will bring me on to hope. You have gone first and I remain. One thing I will have you do,
Walk slowly down that long long path, for soon I will follow you.
I want to know each step you take, So
I may take the same. For someday down that lonely road, You will hear me call your name.
Madge, I do miss You, Billie

In Memoriam

To my wife who passed away
Nov. 9th, 1959. You have gone first and I remain, for battles to be fought. Each thing you have touched along the way, will be a hallowed spot. I will hear your voice I will see your smile. The kindly I may grieve. The memory of your helping hand. Will bring me on to hope. You have gone first and I remain. One thing I will have you do,
Walk slowly now that long long path, for soon I will follow you. I want to know each step you take. So I may take the same. For someday down that long road. You will hear me call your name.
Madge, I do miss you, Billie

Braves' Proposed Move Faces Antitrust Action

MILWAUKEE, Wis. (AP) — Major League baseball faced the choice today of remaining in Milwaukee or risking an antitrust suit in Wisconsin courts, a prospect that a baseball lawyer said "could lead to the ruination of the game as we know it."

The dilemma, which left Wisconsin and Milwaukee County in position to bargain to keep the Braves from shifting to Atlanta next season, developed Tuesday in U. S. District Court.

Judge Robert E. Tehan ruled that Wisconsin courts should decide the antitrust suit filed by Wisconsin's attorney general.

The Tehan ruling, which cannot be appealed, means the antitrust suit will reach the federal courts only after being heard in Wisconsin.

The state is now free to seek an injunction in its own courts against the Braves' shift to Atlanta, planned for 1966.

Willard S. Stafford, special counsel for Wisconsin in the case, said he would start work on the injunction as soon as possible.

Should an injunction be granted, it could keep the Braves in Milwaukee until the case clears the Wisconsin courts. That could be well after the start of the 1966 season.

The implications raised by the ruling go deeper than just the Braves' case.

Earl Jinkinson, Braves' attorney, acknowledged as much when he told Judge Tehan prior to his ruling that if Wisconsin could control the activities of baseball "it would lead to the ruination of the game as we know it."

"If Wisconsin can do this, then all the other states too can claim they are being prevented from having teams. We might wind up with 60 teams."

Baseball fought to have the case heard in the federal courts. Jinkinson argued that the case should be heard together with a federal antitrust suit filed against the league by Milwaukee County.

The suit maintains that the National League is so organized as to create a monopoly in the employment of players of major league quality, as well as in the scheduling and the broadcast of games.

The suit also strikes at the authority of the commissioner of baseball and the sacrosanct reserve clause, which enables a baseball club to have complete control of its players as a property right.

Coach Bup Rearick Dies at Age of 56

CANTON, Ohio (AP) — Herman (Bup) Rearick, who coached football and basketball at Dover and Canton McKinley high schools, died Tuesday night after a long illness. He was 56.

Rearick, who became assistant principal at Canton McKinley in 1961, coached both sports at Dover after he graduated from Wittenberg in 1932.

He coached basketball at McKinley from 1938 to 1961, except for a four-year break from 1949-52, and compiled a record of 252-66. He coached football from 1942-49 and compiled a 67-8-6 record.

School Dropouts Rank High on Ohio Idle List

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The Ohio Bureau of Unemployment Compensation says better than one of four persons on the 1965 jobless rolls in Ohio had no formal education beyond the eighth grade.

The announcement came Tuesday in a report which state officials say is proof that school dropouts rank high on the state jobless list.

AP Guesspert Says Top 11s To Win Again

By HAROLD CLAASSEN
Associated Press Sports Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — College football picks were made in the midst of New York's blackout Tuesday night but this is no indication that they are either better or worse than any previous ones.

Last week, with the selections made in broad daylight, the percentage was 761.

Here are this week's picks, more in the dark than usual:

Michigan State over Indiana: That Michigan State defense is the stingiest thing since Ebenezer Scrooge.

Arkansas over Southern Methodist: The Porkers confident they can raise the current winning streak among major colleges to 21. But the Mustangs have the personnel to upend Arkansas.

Nebraska over Oklahoma State: The two teams are in the same league but not in the same class.

Notre Dame over North Carolina: If Notre Dame needs a running quarterback, it uses Bill Zloch; when it needs a throwing quarterback, it uses Tom Schoen. What North Carolina needs most is help.

Alabama over South Carolina: How did Alabama ever lose that opening game?

Southern California over Pittsburgh: Three rivals defeated the Panthers by a total of 183-74; all seven of the Trojans' foes could collect only 66 points.

UCLA over Stanford: Coach Tommy Prothro and quarterback Gary Beban have breathed new life into the Uclans.

Tennessee over Mississippi: The death of the three young Tennessee coaches in that traffic accident has given the Vols a purpose.

Missouri over Oklahoma: About the only fault you can find with Missouri is that Gary Lane, the Tiger tosser, isn't accurate with his passes. In this case, it won't bother too much.

Kentucky over Houston: Last weekend, Houston spilled Mississippi. That was warning enough for the Wildcats.

Dartmouth over Cornell: Few backfields can boast of as much aerobic ability as the Indian foursome that includes Mickey Beard and Gene Ryzewicz.

Purdue over Minnesota: Each has an outstanding quarterback but Purdue's Bob Griese gets the nod.

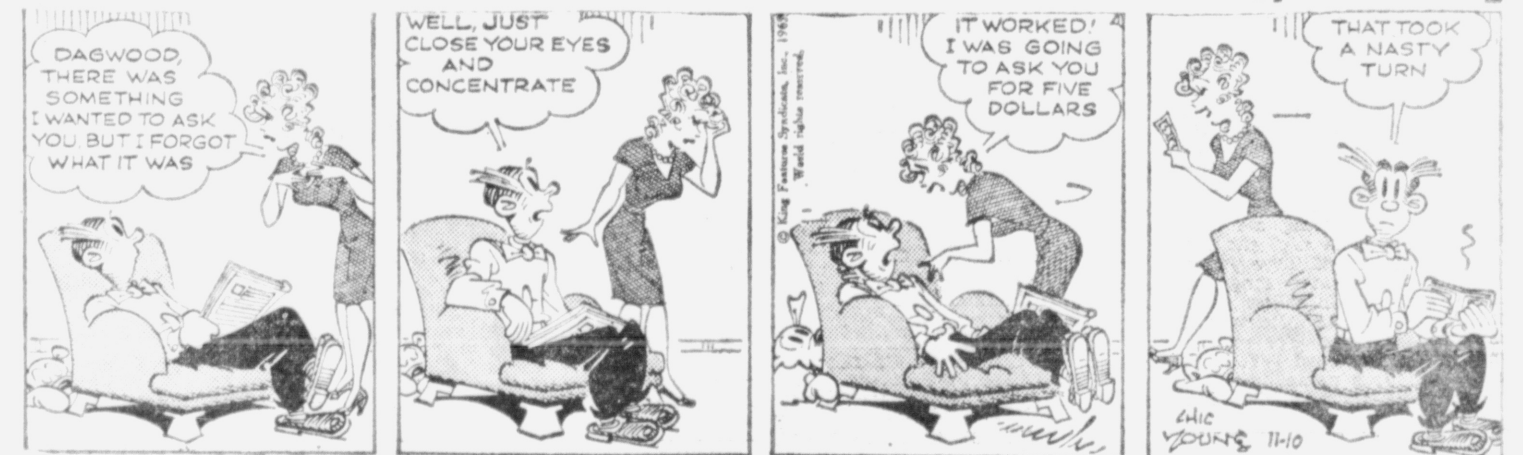

Ohio State over Iowa, Michigan over Northwestern, Illinois over Wisconsin, Cincinnati over South Dakota, Miami (Ohio) over Dayton, Bowling Green over Ohio University, Western Michigan over Montana, Syracuse over West Virginia.

PROTECTION WEEK — Nov. 14-20 has been designated as Protection Week in the Circleville area by proclamation of Mayor Ben H. Gordon. The mayor cited the week as a public service effort to make citizens aware of the dangers of financial loss from unfortunate mishaps and urged citizens to check up on their insurance protection plans. Signing the proclamation is Mayor Gordon. On the left is Lewis Cook Jr., president of the Pickaway County Insurance Agents Assn.

Man Shipped To U.S. Via Air Freight

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—The FBI says a Berkeley, Calif., surfer shipped himself in a box from Australia to California.

Assistant U.S. Atty. David Urdan authorized issuance Tuesday of a summons calling Richard Earl Fox, whose last known address was in Berkeley, to appear on stowaway charges Nov. 24.

FBI agents said Peter and Phillip Jackson told authorities in Sydney, Australia. They put Fox in a box and shipped him air freight to the United States.

San Francisco Airport employees noticed that the crate, shipped via Qantas Airways, was considerably lighter than its original weight and inside was scribbled a note: "Thanks for the ride, Dick the Fox."

The box had been shipped collect to a non-existent address in San Francisco. Charges on the shipment—$447.54.

French and Italian miners gouged out enough rock to build a sidewalk from Paris to Baghdad in boring the 7.2-mile highway tunnel beneath Mont Blanc.

But a spokesman for the Potomac Electric Power Co. here said all that saved Washington — and Pennsylvania, Delaware and Maryland — was the closing off of an interconnection between those states and the area that was blacked out. There was no consideration given, he said, to attempting to supply the enormous needs of the Northeast from its neighboring states.

He did not suggest the renovations. But ironically, an intricate, government-urged linking of Northeastern power systems intended to assure electricity in an emergency may have been a key contributor to the blackout.

The theory was that a failure in one area would be automatically remedied by a power flow from another area.

Swidler, warning that too few facts were in to make any firm judgments, said the crisis calls for a great deal of "careful study and industry thinking and perhaps some fairly important technological renovations."

Camper Buffs To Meet Here November 15

Camper Buffs in Pickaway County have scheduled an organizational meeting for the purpose of forming a local chapter that will be affiliated with the National Campers and Hikers Assn.

The session will be conducted Nov. 15 at the Fairgrounds 4-H and Grange Building. The meet will start at 7:30 p. m.

J. E. Henson, president of the Chillicothe Chapter, will be guest speaker. He will describe objectives and activities of NCHA.

Other business will include a report by the Campers Committee on activity since an initial meeting which was held here Oct. 11.

All persons interested in camping are invited to the Nov. 15 meet.

Delayed Mart Prices Mixed

NEW YORK (AP)—The stock market was mixed on a delayed opening today.

Trading on the New York and American stock exchanges began at 11:05 a.m. EST. The exchanges were unable to open at the usual 10 a.m. time because power had not been fully restored after Tuesday night's blackout.

Some commodity markets also delayed their opening.

Trading was active.

American Telephone hit a new 1965 low of 63 3/4, off 1/4, on a big opening block of 40,000.

Other opening blocks included Halliburton, up 3/8 at 12 1/4 on 13,400 shares; Pan American World Airways, unchanged at 41 1/4 on 11,000 shares, and Chrysler, off 1/4 at 54 1/4 on 5,200 shares.

French and Italian miners gouged out enough rock to build a sidewalk from Paris to Baghdad in boring the 7.2-mile highway tunnel beneath Mont Blanc.

Walnut Creek Watershed District Is Proposed

Agricultural officials from three counties met yesterday at Tink's to hear reports on a proposed watershed development for Walnut Creek.

The watershed, if implemented, would affect portions of Pickaway, Franklin and Fairfield Counties.

A survey of the area involved and the study of information gathered indicates a watershed development program would be feasible. Future steps would hinge on interest displayed locally, according to Pearl Fogle, area conservationist.

Public Law 566, which provides federal financial assistance for such small watershed developments, would be applicable to the project.

IN Pickaway County, the next step in implementation of the watershed development will be up to a Technical Action Panel, composed of representatives of the various USDA offices here.

If enough interest is shown, it will be up to the citizens of the area involved to form the watershed district.

There are 280 square miles in watershed area involved. Of the section surveyed, 7,500 acres are subject to flooding. About 80 per cent of the flood area is crop land.

Many portions of the area have a drainage problem, according to the study. There are some small urban areas involved.

Four potential dam sites explored would control 55 square miles of runoff. The four sites would have a potential storage of 12,000 acre feet of water.

The survey indicated other potential dam sites were available.

FRANK CARR, work unit conservationist in Fairfield County, outlined the Upper Hocking Watershed District to those present at yesterday's session. This

'Bleed In' Due Today At Ohio State

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Ohio State University students line up today for a "bleed in" supporting the U. S. war effort in Viet Nam.

Backers of the student demonstration expect it to be over-subscribed during the two days of collecting blood.

Arrangements were made to collect about 1,200 pints of blood. Indications are that more donors than that will sign up to give blood.

The "bleed in" was set up by 22-year-old Steve Foley, a senior from Northfield, after he read of a similar program at another college.

Students know the blood won't go straight to Viet Nam. But, said Foley, "this is a symbolic thing" showing support of students for the Americans in Viet Nam, in contrast to demonstrations by some students protesting American involvement in that fighting.

The "bleed in" has the support of the university administration. Dean of Students John T. Bonner was the first donor to sign up.

Red Cross workers will collect the blood, aided by Army Reservists of two medical units.

County Vote Totals 8,321

Official tabulation of votes cast last Tuesday in the November general election was released today by the Pickaway County Board of Elections.

The total vote cast in the county was 8,321. The unofficial tabulation last week listed 8,314.

No races were changed as a result of the final tab. A board spokesman said no applications for the recount of votes had been filed.

Airport Project in Fayette Lauded by Aviation Chief

WASHINGTON C. H. — Fayette County's project to acquire an airport has an enthusiastic backer in the Ohio Department of Aviation.

Norman Crabtree, Columbus, who heads the department told Kiwanians at a dinner meeting here this week that flying has made such an impact on the world that progress cannot be resisted and no community can progress without air facilities.

Distance is now measured in minutes instead of miles, he said, as he told of flying from Columbus to Jackson, to Cincinnati, Pittsburgh and Akron and then back to Columbus in one day.

An airport was described as the front door of a community. With each new airport opened, he said, planes become more valuable because of additional landing facilities.

There are more than 1,600 company-owned planes in Ohio, he said, and he pointed out that one of the first questions asked concerning a prospective site for a new plant is: "Is an airport available?"

He cited several cities which lost new industries because they had no airport.

He predicted more growth in Southern Ohio than ever before with the opening of more airports. He said Gov. James A. Rhodes was able to attend six county fairs in one day by using a plane.

Crabtree told the Kiwanians that Fayette County has a fine site for an airport — 22 acres on the County Home farm three miles from Washington C. H. off the Devalon Rd. Construction of runways is scheduled to start early next year under direction of County Engineer Charles P. Wagner.

Companies, he said, have invested in planes and communities must invest in airports to keep pace with progress.

Crabtree expressed appreciation for the help given the state's airport development program by county commissioners, Chamber President Richard F. Kilian and City Manager Jack M. Whitmer.

"Today we must deal with one world because the airplane has so shrunk distances there no longer is any isolation," he commented. In 62 years since the advent of aviation, he said, more has been accomplished than in the 2,000 years since the first Roman wheel. Civilization is the product of travel, he said.

Noting the changes that have come about, he said 60 per cent of the people are now working at jobs that did not exist 40 years ago. To illustrate, he said there are men in Ethiopia who were born in caves and are now flying jet planes.

the existing status of those communications.

"A rapid check of major military installations, including the Strategic Air Command and the North American Air Defense Command, confirms that communications are intact," the Defense Department said within an hour of the blackout.

No air of crisis was apparent at the Pentagon, where lights went out at the usual time in the offices of key officials. Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara did not return to his office during the Northeast blackout.

Swidler, warning that too few facts were in to make any firm judgments, said the crisis calls for a great deal of "careful study and industry thinking and perhaps some fairly important technological renovations."

He did not suggest the renovations. But ironically, an intricate, government-urged linking of Northeastern power systems intended to assure electricity in an emergency may have been a key contributor to the blackout.

pulled switches that isolated southern and eastern Ontario from the interlocking grid.

That's when the power was cut off from various centers in Ontario. The blackout lasted from five minutes to two hours in some places because it takes time for generating units that are in reserve to build up to the power demand.

The surge of power from New York entered the Canadian system at Cornwall through an interconnection, flashed across the southern Ontario network and back into New York through an interconnection at Niagara Falls, officials said.

The interconnected system is the epitome of sophisticated technology. It operates almost automatically. Because its parts were so united, they dropped all together. Like a tree felled by an ax.

This system is part of a nationwide power grid in which 97 per cent of the electric industry's generating capacity is joined in five large networks.

The U.S. government, mindful that the nation's electricity needs have doubled every 10 years for the past 80 years, has encouraged and prodded utilities to intertie in this manner.

Today government and utility engineers in Canada and the United States are trying to find out how to keep the system from failing again and spreading chaos.

Walnut Creek Watershed District Is Proposed

Agricultural officials from three counties met yesterday at Tink's to hear reports on a proposed watershed development for Walnut Creek.

The watershed, if implemented, would affect portions of Pickaway, Franklin and Fairfield Counties.

A survey of the area involved and the study of information gathered indicates a watershed development program would be feasible. Future steps would hinge on interest displayed locally, according to Pearl Fogle, area conservationist.

Public Law 566, which provides federal financial assistance for such small watershed developments, would be applicable to the project.

IN Pickaway County, the next step in implementation of the watershed development will be up to a Technical Action Panel, composed of representatives of the various USDA offices here.

If enough interest is shown, it will be up to the citizens of the area involved to form the watershed district.

There are 280 square miles in watershed area involved. Of the section surveyed, 7,500 acres are subject to flooding. About 80 per cent of the flood area is crop land.

Four potential dam sites explored would control 55 square miles of runoff. The four sites would have a potential storage of 12,000 acre feet of water.

The survey indicated other potential dam sites were available.

FRANK CARR, work unit conservationist in Fairfield County, outlined the Upper Hocking Watershed District to those present at yesterday's session. This District was a pilot project for the federal program.

Attending the meeting from Pickaway County were Bruce Conner, Farmers Home Administration; Donald Archer, work unit conservationist for the soil conservation service; Bernice Hunsinger, of the local SCS office; Jay Hay, Chaney Vance and Frank Graves, supervisors of the Pickaway Soil and Water Conservation District; J. A. Dowden, office manager of the Pickaway ASCS; Galen Mowery and George Stump, ASC committee members; and George Hamrick and James R. Helt, Pickaway Extension office.

Fraternity Accepts Coed As Pledge

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Nancy Spies is a coed who wears her fraternity pin with pride.

Why not join a sorority with other coeds?

"Then I'd have to conform," Nancy says. "I couldn't go around being a coed. It's a college phrase meaning sloppy — like in wearing old loafers and inside-out sweat shirts."

"It's lots of fun to be the only girl in a place with all these guys," said Nancy, an 19-year-old Ohio State University freshman from Dover, after she went through a pledging ritual of Sigma Pi fraternity.

She's a blonde with measurements of 33-24-37 and naturally can't live in the fraternity house. So she lives next door in a women's dormitory.

Things seem to be working out pretty well for the coed but there is one problem. It's unlikely that the national Sigma Pi fraternity will let her become a full active member.
